SETTLEMENT OF EXTRADITION CONFLICT TO TEST REAL VALUE OF TREATY, FRANCE DECLARES

Disarmament of Germany Should Be Required by Allies, It Is Pointed Out; Consideration of New Note Delayed.

(By Associated Press)

Paris, Feb. 6.—Consideration of the new note to be sent to Germany as a result of the failure of her representative here to transmit the list of accused Germans demanded for extradition by the allies was deferred by the council of ambassadors today until evening because Lord Birkenhead, the British lord high chancellor, and Sir Gordon Hewart, the attorney general, were delayed in their journey from London by fog in the English channel.

Wilhelm Mayer, German charge d'affaires in this city, has arrived in Berlin and will participate in government deliberations regarding the extradition of Germans accused of war crimes according to a dispatch received here.

Settlement of the present conflict between the allied powers and Germany relative to the surrender of Germans accused of war crimes may determine the value of the Versailles treaty, according to views expressed by the French press. Several journals declare the allies must profit by the present occasion and call for the execution of guarantees provided in the treaty.

Disarmament Is Ultimatum

Disarmament of Germany should be required by the allies, says the Eclair, and the provocation afforded by the Lersner incident is sufficient to justify this step.

Suggestion that in default of surrendering the men on the extradition list and the execution of other alleged "impossible" treaty claims, Germany should be compelled to cede the left bank of the Rhine to the entente, is made by the journal while the Victoire observes that "the workings of the extradition clause of the pact recall to the allies the demand of Marshal Foch that the left bank of the Rhine should be formed into a neutral state."

Assembly May Be Called

Berlin, Feb. 6.—Premier Bauer's conference with party leaders tomorrow will probably determine whether the national assembly will be called to consider the extradition situation.

Persons well informed deny the existence of a governmental crisis and the Prussian cabinet has endorsed the national cabinet's attitude, which is unaltered. This may be regarded as a symptom of the spirit in which the entente demands are being met, all prominent politicians condemning the allied edict.

A member of the government is quoted by the press as saying:

"The government is still endeavoring to find a way out by further negotiations."

Would Modify Treaty

It is believed that the government will attempt to obtain a modification of the peace treaty respecting extradition. If it is unsuccessful it will, so to speak, fold its arms and let events take their own course, according to prevalent opinion. Already it is reported the German airmen detailed to accompany the entente commission of control have refused to perform their duties.

A scrutiny of the extradition list shows that Belgium and France have demanded the surrender of all the German generals who commanded on the west front in 1914 except General Von Heringen. Why the Grand Duke of Hesse is listed is a mystery, says the Tageblatt, as he only once visited the front.

Government to Resign?

London, Feb. 6.—A Berlin dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph company quotes the Berlin Tageszeitung as saying the German government must resign, while the Allgemeine Zeitung is said to assert the question of extraditing Germans accused of violations of the laws of war is "for the whole country to decide, so that the German states may determine whether they are willing to be the victims of an invasion."

Swiss Follow Dutch

Geneva, Feb. 6.—Swiss federal authorities, it is reported, will follow the precedent set by Holland in dealing with demands from the allies for the extradition of Germans who are in this country. Former Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria as well as several minor officers on the extradition list are now in Switzerland.

Dutch Disapprove Demands

The Hague, Thursday, Feb. 5.—Virtually without exception the Dutch press characterizes the allied demand for the surrender of German war criminals as being "impossible."

SOCIALIST TRIAL IS ADJOURNED; CASE READY FOR DEFENSE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 6.—Adjournment until next Tuesday of the trial of the five suspended socialist assemblymen found Albany today deserted of counsel, witnesses, and out of town spectators.

The prosecution has virtually closed its case. A few "odds and ends" of evidence remain to be introduced before the defense opens.

These include a deposition by J. E. Harris, formerly city editor of the Milwaukee Leader, which will be taken in that city tomorrow. The prosecution has announced that it seeks to show through Harris that Assemblyman Louis Waldman, a defendant, made the following remark on the floor of the socialist convention in Chicago in 1919:!

"If I knew if we could sway the boys after they get guns to use them against the capitalistic class, I would favor universal military training."

Seymour Stedman, defense counsel, said yesterday his side would require only a week to present its case. He added that it would take even less time if he decided not to go into the question of conditions in Russia.

BOLSHEVIK DANGER STARTS DISCUSSION OF SEDITION BILL

Conflicting Views Expressed by Kane and Newton before Committee.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Feb. 6.—Conflicting views as to the danger to the United States from radicals now in this country were presented today to the house judiciary committee considering anti-sedition legislation.

Francis H. F. Kane, former federal district attorney at Philadelphia who resigned recently because he was not in sympathy with Attorney General Palmer's campaign against the "reds," told the committee that much of the agitation about bolshevism in America was "mere talk."

Attorney General Charles D. Newton, New York, disagreed with this view.

"Congress and the people of the United States should awaken to the danger of the doctrines of these radicals and take necessary step to curb their propaganda," Mr. Newton said. Quoting various excerpts of the "left wing manifesto" published in the "Revolutionary Age" in July, 1919, Mr. Newton declared moderate socialists were condemned while the more violent element of the party sought a soviet form of government which would be accompanied by a repudiation of all national debts.

"This means an advocacy of repudiation of liberty bonds and all other government obligations held by patriotic citizens who loaned the government billions of dollars in the time of war," he added.

Such publications, he said, explain the aims of the communists, the I. W. W. and other radical organizations, against whom the pending sedition bills are aimed.

Approximately 500,000 radicals in New York City alone are organized to overthrow all capitalistic governments, Mr. Newton said. The better element of organized labor and the Catholic church, he declared, have been the two leading factors in suppressing these revolutionary activities.

Asked by Representative Gard, how these revolutionary tendencies could be met the witness said an educational campaign should be inaugurated.

Deportations and threatened deportations would aid in the solution of the problem, Newton said.

"Most of what we see in newspapers regarding this menace in this country is mere bunk," said Mr. Kane. "I, for one, cannot take the feeling of bolshevism seriously.

"A drastic sedition law in peace time breeds suspicion against honest law abiding citizens."

Representative Johnson, republican, Washington, told the committee a "stiff law was needed."

PRINCESS ANNE GROUNDED; 32 PASSENGERS SAFE

S. O. S. CALL COMES FROM VESSEL OFF LONG ISLAND POINT.

STORM CONTINUES

Eastern Coast Swept by Snow and Winds, Damage Heavy.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, Feb. 6.—The steamship Princess Anne of the Old Dominion line, carrying 32 passengers and a crew of 72, from Norfolk to New York, ran aground one mile off the coast at Rockaway Point on Long Island in a heavy storm early today and sent out S. O. S. calls for assistance.

Wireless reports said that Captain Seay of the Princess Anne had been seriously injured. The vessel's position was considered serious on account of the gale that had lashed the coast for the past two days.

Members of the coast guard at Rockaway Beach endeavored to launch a boat to go to the steamer, but gave up the attempt when giant rollers nearly battered the craft to pieces.

Passengers to be Taken Off.

In response to a wireless inquiry from police headquarters the Princess Anne reported that she was not in imminent danger of breaking up. She requested that her passengers be taken off by tugs as soon as possible.

Advices from the stranded ship sent through coast guard observers shortly after 10 a. m. were that the hull was badly strained through the pounding of the surf.

The sea was running high and word has been sent to the coast guard to send all available assistance. The passengers were said to be comfortable.

Two navy tugs and a coast guard cutter are standing by the disabled ship and other vessels are approaching here.

A message from Captain Seay, received by the Old Dominion line, requested that relatives of the passengers be informed they were in no immediate danger.

More Storm Predicted

Washington, Feb. 6.—Another 24 hours of snow and high winds along the Atlantic coast from Maryland to Maine was forecast today by the weather bureau.

The peak of the storm is now in New England where the heaviest fall of snow in the east this winter—20 inches—was recorded.

The fall continued general from the Canadian border to central Virginia and covered a path as far west as the upper Ohio valley. Damage resulting from the storm has been heavy. High tides, heavy seas, and high winds have wrought havoc at Atlantic coast resorts from Carolina to New England, places damaged including Atlantic City, Coney Island, Maryland, Ocean View, and Buckroe Beach, Va., and Wrightsville Beach, N. C.

Shipping also has suffered severely, many vessels being in distress all along the coast.

Rail Traffic Hampered

Railroad traffic has been seriously interfered with, reports to the railroad administration showing passenger trains running far behind schedule and in many sections freight trains blocked.

At the weather bureau it was said that the center of the storm had moved so close to land that it was possible now to locate it as a short distance southeast of Nantucket, Mass. The storm is moving northeastward and, it was said, will move a little more rapidly than it has.

There has been no marked cold at any point in the storm area, temperatures generally being only a little below the freezing point, according to the weather bureau.

Severest Blizzard in Decade

Boston, Feb. 6.—All energies were directed in New England today in recovering from the effects of the severest blizzard in a decade. With transportation demoralized, telephone and telegraph service considerably impaired, industrial and community life was paralyzed except in northern Vermont, which alone was spared the fury of the storm.

The snow averaged from 10 to 12 inches in depth and drifted badly. Nearly 30 trains were reported stalled throughout New England last night. The freight problem was considered serious today, especially because of the seven days strike of freight handlers here which was ended yesterday.

No vessel sailed from this port yesterday and but one arrived. Vineyard Haven and Nantucket were completely cut off from the mainland.

500 FARM HANDS NEEDED IN ROCK COUNTY IN SPRING

Production Will Be Cut Unless Enough Help Is Available.

Five hundred farm hands, single or married will be needed by the farmers of Rock county, for their spring work, according to an announcement made today by R. T. Glassco, county agent. Cooperating with the farmers, he is starting a campaign with the aid of the local Chamber of Commerce to help get the labor. In addition to placarding cities and towns, he is communicating with employment agencies in Chicago, Milwaukee, and other large centers.

The labor situation for the 4,000 farmers of this county is a serious one, according to the agent. Many of the farmers have expressed a fear that they will probably have to operate their land as best they can do this summer. Trouble was experienced last year in getting adequate help, and this year it is expected to be worse.

Cities Attract Help.

Farm hands no longer remain in the country during the winter. After completing the harvest they migrate to the cities where they can find plenty of work at good wages. When spring comes, the offers of the farmers do not seem so attractive and many refuse to go back to the land.

Some farmers have already informed the county agent that because of the outlook for farm hands, they are contemplating putting in no more crops than they can handle with efficiency. Where farmers have help already secured, they are planning in many cases to grow grass where before they had grain. This situation, says Mr. Glassco, is serious to the consumer. It will mean a drop in production of produce and grains at a time when increased production is essential.

Wage Question Difficult.

Farmers are at a loss what to pay their help this coming season. In addition to the ordinary method of judging a man's worth by his ability and experience, the present marketing situation must be taken into consideration. Hogs, it is explained, have taken a sudden drop. In looking for an explanation of this situation, Mr. Glassco explained that the upheaval and collapse in the foreign exchange market has sent all grain, live stock and provisions tumbling.

DOCTORS URGED TO REPORT ALL CASES

Dr. Fred B. Welch, city health officer, and the Chamber of Commerce today renewed their appeals to physicians to report all cases of influenza as they develop in the city. It is urged on the grounds that unless it is undone the disease may gain headway. Placarding of houses which contain influenza cases is the only way to check the spread of it, Dr. Welch says.

Deputy Inspector Bowman in his tour here yesterday recommended drastic treatment of doctors who fail to report influenza cases to the health officer.

According to incomplete records at the Chamber of Commerce today compiled after efforts had been made to reach all physicians, there are 90 cases of the disease in the city.

MONEY MARKET IS EASED BY PROPOSED WORLD EXCHANGE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, Feb. 6.—The movement of foreign exchange today was generally more favorable under the load of the advance in exchange on New York to 3.35. Brussels and Paris exchange eased to 48 francs, 45 centimes to 47 francs, 30 centimes, respectively. The movement was based on the growing belief that combined action would be taken shortly to deal with the exchange problem.

Several plans for such action have been suggested, the one most favored is for the government banks of the world to form a central committee, sitting permanently in London with representatives of each bank as members.

It is pointed out that this plan would be likely to meet with a great deal of opposition because the banks here are deriving profits from the speculative operations of exchange dealers which have been on an enormous scale recently and are largely responsible for the present wild fluctuations.

Toward noon, foreign exchange assumed a more settled tone. Demand sterling was steady at 3.35¼, francs were quoted at 14.52 and lires at 19.32.

PROSECUTOR WOULD PROVE EXCESSIVE NEWBERRY FUNDS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Grand Rapids, Mich., Feb. 6.—Testimony relating to funds deposited or withdrawn by members of Senator Truman H. Newberry's campaign committee was introduced by the government again today in the election conspiracy trial in which the senator and 122 of his associates are defendants.

At the conclusion of yesterday's session, Frank C. Dailey, special prosecutor, claimed that so far the prosecution had shown the use of more than $200,000 in the Newberry campaign whereas, he declared, $3,750 was the lawful maximum.

Pearl Gilbert, secretary to Congressman Gilbert O. Currie, and former financial clerk in the state house of representatives, testified at the start of today's session. She told of being hired by Paul King and being paid $50 a week by B. Frank Emery.

She said from late June, 1918, to August she worked at the home of Fred C. Martindale, writing Newberry campaign letters. Miss Gilbert remembered once calling Truman H. Newberry on long distance telephone for King at some time after the August 27 primary.

She remembered of a telegram to Newberry, the substance of which was:

"Don't worry, everything is all right."

She was not cross-questioned.

Margaret Simmons, Grand Rapids, went to work in the local headquarters about Aug. 1. She said George Welsh offered her $15 a week and Charles Floyd paid her. She wrote form letters.

EVERY TRADE AND CRAFT OF A. F. L. IS TO BE CALLED OUT.

4 MILLION VOTES

Opposition Strong to Every Candidate Unfavorable to Unions.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Feb. 6.—Plans for the most aggressive and general political campaign ever waged by the American Federation of labor were formulated at a meeting here today of the general committee composed of the executive council and the heads of all departments of the federation.

It was said officially that the campaign to be conducted in connection with the general elections in November not only would be aimed at members of congress, or candidates unfavorable to organized labor, but also at unfriendly candidates for president, governor and for members of state legislatures.

Every trade and craft affiliated with the federation will be called upon to take up the fight in every section of the country, and to exert every effort to elect only such public officials as are favorable to the principles of organized labor. It was said that a vast army of organizers and workers would be recruited for the campaign.

Every member of the present house or senate up for reelection who has shown by his record an unfriendly spirit towards organized labor, it was said, will be opposed by the labor vote which federation officials placed at about 4,000,000.

President Gompers presided at the session today and there was the fullest discussion of the whole question. Formal announcement of the federation's plans was expected after the meeting had ended late today.

RAIL MEN INSIST ON WAGE ACTION

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Detroit, Feb. 6.—Formal insistence that favorable action be taken upon demands of the maintenance of way employes and railway shop laborers for wage increases was decided upon by grand officers of the workers' brotherhood in conference here.

The union officers adopted a resolution this morning instructing their committee in Washington to inform Director General Hines that seven days will be allowed for action on their demands.

Adoption of the resolution followed receipt of a telegram from Vice President J. D. Malloy, acting for the brotherhood in Washington, stating that the conferences with Mr. Hines gave little promise of favorable action.

While officers of the brotherhood made it plain that failure of the Washington negotiations would mean an immediate order for cessation of work by 300,000 members, it was intimated an appeal might be taken to President Wilson as a last resort.

LINGERING FAMINE FACED BY AUSTRIA, SAYS FOOD MINISTER

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Paris, Thursday, Feb. 5.—Lingering starvation is facing the Austrian republic, the plight of which has grown considerably worse in the last two months, said Dr. Lowenfeld-Russ, Austrian state secretary of food administration, to the Associated Press today. Dr. Lowenfeld-Russ, who is in this city to raise funds to avert a famine in his country pointed out the necessity of obtaining immediate relief.

"Relief granted in December by the supreme council when importations of flour to Austria were ordered," Dr. Lowenfeld-Russ said, "postponed the food crisis but was far from giving definite safety to the country. The general food situation can be characterized as lingering starvation.

"Depreciation of our currency deprives us of every possibility of buying food in the world's market. A dollar, which was worth five crowns before the war is now worth 350 crowns and thus we have to pay for importations 60 times their pre-war value without counting the great increases in prices, even in America.

"Our government has tried for some time to counterbalance price differences for our people by making it partly a state charge but our means are exhausted. There is now no other alternative than to make the customer pay full prices but our poor population cannot afford to buy even the small rations we are able to distribute. General under-nutrition in the big towns, especially Vienna, is the consequence."

PURE BRED BULL DRIVE IS GAINING

Intensive work in taking a pure bred bull census in this county is being done through the efforts of T. T. Glasco, county agent. Notices have just been sent out to the rural school teachers, with whose aid the scholars are gathering the necessary data, to skip no farmer. The cards are to be returned to O. D. Antisdel, county educational superintendent, by February 14.

The only purpose of the campaign, it is stated, is to try to persuade the farmers to use pure bred sires and thereby increase the quality of their own stock and that of the county. The real benefit of the scheme is shown by a report coming from South Dakota, where a farmer received $52.26 more for steers from a pure bred bull than those from a scrub.

To Wisconsin goes the honor of having started the pure bred bull movement. About three years ago, D. S. Bullock, county agent of Fond du Lac county, started a campaign in his territory. So successful was he that the idea spread throughout the state, increasing the value of the cattle one-third. The United States department of agriculture is now conducting an extensive campaign throughout the country for pure bred bulls and many farm publications have taken up the battle. The Canadian government has recently sent representatives to Wisconsin to study the effects of high grade sires with the purpose of initiating the plan onto its own farms.

TRAPPING FOR PROFIT.

(By Belle Case Harrington.)

A high school boy in Ohio made $150 last winter, selling furs. He knew just where to trap and he had a dog to help him; but an ordinary boy, without so much experience, and no dog, can make good money trapping; for furs are higher than they have been in thirty years.

November to April is the fur season. During the summer most furs are worthless. Earlier than November they are not heavy enough. Muskrat, raccoon, mink, opossum, and skunk are the animals most commonly trapped. Skunk and muskrat are easiest. Skunk are found under barns, in haystacks and in burrows which they make in the edge of the woods. Steel trap No. 2 is the best size for this animal. Meat is the best bait to use, but many trappers do not put the meat in the trap. They "trail" it by fastening it to a long string tied to the belt as they go to set the traps. As it drags over the ground, it leaves its scent and the animal follows it. When he comes to the trap, partly covered with leaves, he rushes into it.

Muskrats inhabit swamps and creeks and can be snared rather easily with a trap, size 1. Select a rotten log lying in the water. Place some corn on it and chop a place in one side for the trap. Fasten the chain to a stake set in deep water. Put the trap where the muskrat will be held in deep water and drown; otherwise the little chap will gnaw off a foot and thus secure his freedom. Some trappers use alligator traps, which kill the game as soon as caught.

Opossum and racoon are trapped in much the same way as the skunk. With dogs, the best way is to trail the coons and shoot them from the branches of the tree.

As soon as caught, all animals should be skinned and all flesh removed. The skins are then stretched on a board to dry. This board is of a shape to fit the hide.

Any good magazine on hunting and trapping contains advertisements of hide dealers to whom one can ship direct.

How Phonographs Talk

"What makes a phonograph talk, Daddy?"

"Well, sonny, that's a hard one. The phonograph can talk because sounds are nothing more than waves in the air caused by vibrations. When you hit a tin pan it vibrates and sends out waves in the air like the waves in a pond sent out by a pebble thrown into it. When you blow a horn you send out similar air waves. The two kinds sound differently, or have a different tone or pitch, because the waves are of different lengths—because there are more or less waves per second. A on the piano has 435 waves or vibrations per second; middle C sounds lower because it is caused by fewer vibrations per second.

"Musical instruments are simply devices that can be made to vibrate at certain speeds so as to produce certain waves—and therefore, certain tones. In a piano, violin, guitar the strings are the vibrators; in certain wind instruments the waves are set up by a vibrating reed. Our voices are vibrating chords in our throats. All sounds are thus the result of something that vibrates. We hear them because they strike a tiny drum in the ear and cause it to vibrate with them.

"A phonograph is a device for reproducing vibrations that have been preserved in a wax record. To make a record, someone sings or plays into the horn of a phonograph whose steel needle is running on a soft wax record. The sound waves, beating upon the drum to which it is attached cause the needle to vibrate in unison. It, in turn, makes little dents and nicks in the wax. Then the wax is hardened to keep the dents. Later, to "play" the record, you run the needle over it and the hardened dents and bumps set the needle to vibrating and producing the original sounds.

"You cannot see the bumps in the record because they are in the circular grooves. The vibrations are increased by the drum of the sounding box to which the needle is attached and by the horn or sound chamber. The rest of the mechanism is a spring clock-works to turn the record."

LAKOTA SEAT SALE SETS NEW RECORD

A new record for advance ticket sales for home talent entertainments was believed to have been set today when approximately 600 tickets to the "Lakota Follies of 1920" were disposed of at the Myers theater box office in three hours. When Charles McDonald, of the seat sale committee, arrived at the box office shortly after 9 o'clock this morning he found a line of 25 people waiting. The line continued throughout the morning.

The majority sought tickets to the opening performance, Tuesday night, so that practically all the main floor was disposed of, making it necessary for them to procure admission to the second show, Wednesday evening.

Mr. McDonald says he has a number of desirable seats left for both performances but advises early purchases.

Final rehearsals for the show will be held Sunday afternoon and Monday evening. Mort Phinn, Beloit, was in the city last evening to direct the special rehearsal held in Terpsichorean hall.

Health Boards Give Wa'ning of Influenza Danger

Ask People to Be Careful and Take Proper Treatment Promptly. Many Pneumonia Cases Follow Influenza. What to Do.

To be prepared for the serious outbreaks of Influenza and Pneumonia that are now sweeping over the entire country and that have seized on this community, Public Health Boards everywhere are issuing cautions and instructions to the public not to neglect treatment at the first symptom of a cold and to co-operate with the board and physicians in stamping out the spread of the disease.

No disease develops so quickly or spreads so rapidly. The first symptom usually is a sharp rise in temperature to 103 or 104 degrees, headache, pain in the back, throat feeling dry or sore. Unless promptly checked by proper treatment, the best plan is to go to bed and stay there for at least a week, keeping warm to avoid pneumonia and let the minor ailment run its course, and also prevent the spread of the disease to others.

Most of us, in these busy days, cannot afford, if it can be avoided, to lose a week or more of work so it is all the more necessary that at the very first sign of grip or influenza, a counter-acting treatment should be taken.

Probably no better or more effective treatment could be followed at such a time than to get from the nearest drug store a complete Hyomei outfit, consisting of a bottle of the pure Oil of Hyomei and a little vestpocket, hard rubber inhaling device into which a few drops of the oil are poured.

Put the Inhaler in your mouth and breathe its air deep into the passages of your nose, throat and lungs. Every particle of air that enters your breathing organs will thus be charged with an antiseptic germ-killing balsam that will destroy the germs that have found lodgment there.

You can't do this too often. The Hyomei Inhaler is small and can be conveniently carried in a handbag or in your vest-pocket. Every half hour or so throughout the day take it out and draw a few breaths of its pure healing air into your nose and throat. Relief comes almost instantly. Throat conditions become normal and you soon are feeling fine. The outfit is not at all expensive for the rubber inhaler will last a lifetime while the Oil of Hyomei can be obtained at little cost from any reliable druggist. Lots of people already have a Hyomei Inhaler. Take it out, charge it and use it without delay. If you haven't one get it today.

A few cents spent now may easily prevent serious illness and save you many dollars and help stamp out the spread of the disease. Advertisement.

THE GIRL IN TROUSERS

London, Eng.—A new attempt is being made to get women to accept the trouser fashion in skirts.

Hitherto similar persuasions have failed, but the dressmakers think there is hope now, for the eye of the public has become accustomed to knickered land girls, forestry workers, motor riders, trousered window cleaners and railway women.

The trouser skirt just now has the best chance it ever had.

The last time a well-known dressmaker introduced the fashion a customer quoted Deuteronomy 22:5:

"The woman shall not wear that which pertaineth unto a man . . . for all that do so are an abomination unto the Lord thy God."

Only a few hours, however, are producing trousers pure and simple. Paquin sends her customers out with skirts giving but the appearance of Turkish trousers.

Dainty White Frocks for Girls Who Graduate in the Winter Term

By ELOISE.

Since so many schools hold graduation exercises in February as well as in June, we find such dainty white frocks as these in the show windows. The stores are not forgetting the sweet young girls who graduate at the half year and they have quite as good a selection to choose from as their sisters who get their diplomas in June. Here are three girlishly simple frocks. The center one is a crisp dainty organdy and the other two are georgette.

The frock at the left is white georgette made in the very simplest and most approved fashion for the school girl. The skirt is gathered and rather full, trimmed with three wide tucks and three rows of dainty hemstitching above each tuck. The little round neck and short sleeves are edged with picoted ribbon and hemstitching trims the front of the blouse. A narrow sash and streamers of the ribbon form the girdle which with the neck and sleeve trimming may be changed to some dainty pastel shade after the white commencement day is over.

The frock at the right is also of georgette. It i strimmed with many rows of white uncut fringe which form a sort of openwork design on the skirt and blouse. Bell sleeves and a round neck, neither cut on very extreme lines, are quite suitable for the young girl. A white satin girdle and white kid pumps complete the outfit.

Organdy fashions the frock in the center. Tiny ruffles about the hips and perky little bows perched in unexpected places in the ruffles and on the sleeves and blouse make a charming and youthful trimming. The frock is dainty enough for the big event, but it is practical enough to be of use all during the coming summer. With prices soaring as they are now it behooves mother to look carefully before investing a great deal of money in a dress just for one occasion like commencement exercises. These practical frocks solve her problem, for while they are just the thing for that day they will also be useful many times over for all occasions during the spring and summer.

6-CENT DAMAGES AWARDED FARMER

Judgment consisting of six cents' damages, payment of costs, recovery of a promisary note and an ensilage cutter, is awarded to Laverne Henn and Clara Henn against Philip Doheny in a decision given today by Judge R. L. Maxfield.

It was alleged in the complaint against Doheny that he unjustly and unlawfully detained property after it had been demanded by the plaintiff. It is understood he will appeal the case to Judge Grimm in circuit court.

If the judgment stands he must pay the costs amounting to $19.70, amounting to $19.70, damages of 6 cents, and must turn over to plaintiffs and ensilage cutter valued at $200 and a note for $242.55.

E. H. Ryan represented the plaintiffs while L. A. Avery appeared for Doheny.

SERIOUSLY INJURED IN CUTTER ACCIDENT

Col. F. S. Noble, 1528 Beloit avenue, suffered severe injuries breaking three ribs and bruising his left arm and shoulder when the cutter in which he was riding tipped over yesterday afternoon as he was crossing a railroad track which runs to the Samson Tractor plant.

Several workmen who witnessed the accident helped him to his home. He was reported today to be resting easily.

LOCAL MOOSE WILL AID IN EVANSVILLE

Local Moose members will assist in establishing a lodge at Evansville, it was announced today. Evansville has been solicited by J. C. Corely, Rockford, who for several weeks has also been campaigning in this city, with the result that more than 35 candidates have been secured. The date for establishing the new lodge has not been set.

At the first meeting of the Moose next month there will be a convention of the legion No. 191 which will include legionaires from Monroe, Stoughton, Madison and this city. This meeting the local Moose are planning to make the banner meeting of the year.

Supreme Officer Gherrity, Milwaukee, officiated at the regular meeting of the Moose last evening, when 10 candidates were intiated.

Tuesday evening the Moose will sponsor a dancing party in East Side Odd Fellows' hall.

FRESHMAN AT 70

Philadelphia.—Luke Dillon, seventy years old, who served fourteen years in a Canadian prison for dynamiting the Welland canal, will enter the University of Pennsylvania next year as a freshman. Mr. Dillon, whose motto is "It is never too late to learn," will probably matriculate in the college department, although he seriously considers the advisability of entering the Wharton School.

News of Mr. Dillon's plans leaked out following a meeting of the Sophomore Vigilance Committee to pass resolutions compelling the "freshies" to live up to the sophomores' regulations. It was unanimously decided that the prospective freshman, despite his age, would have to abandon the tile hat, wear blue socks and azure ties.

LONDON CRAFTSMEN MAKE TINIEST AIRPLANE AND TINIEST VIOLIN

Toy airplane tricycle and world's tiniest violin.

Quite a novelty in toys, which was made by an R. A. F. officer for his little girl, is being seen on the streets of London just now. It's an airplane tricycle and while it doesn't fly it gets over the ground in fast time. Photo shows daughter "stepping on the self-starter."

Another London craftsman, Mr. B. Vandermeulen, recently constructed the smallest violin in the world. It is perfect in every detail and so small it will lie easily within the palm of the hand. The exact measurements are: Violin body, 1 11-16 inches; violin, over all, 2 5-8 inches; boy, 3 9-16 inches.

He will be in his office on the second floor of the local post-office building from the coming Monday until the last date for filing returns, March 15.

FAMILY GROWS RAPIDLY.

Crystal Spring, Miss.—John R. Taylor, who furnished more man power to the army in the war than any other man in the United States, has married the third time.

Mr. Taylor is not yet 60 years old. When a young man he married and there were born to the union sixteen sons and daughters. Six of the sons had grown to manhood at the outbreak of the war. They enlisted.

Mrs. Taylor died and Mr. Taylor married Mrs. Thornton, a widow with five children, which brought the Taylor household to twenty-one persons. To that union were born six children, making in the household at one time twenty-seven sons and daughters.

Several months ago Mr. Taylor's second wife died. He married a Mrs. Brown of Magnolia, Miss., a widow with four children, which brings the total number to thirty-one now under his fatherly care.

Some of the children have married and have sons and daughters of their own, so Mr. Taylor's sons and daughters, stepchildren and grandchildren number more than a hundred.

IRON IN STOMACH.

Montreal, Can.—This miscellaneous collection has just been found in the stomach of Charles W. Buzzell, a prisoner at Deer Island, off New Brunswick, as the result of a complaint that he was suffering from indigestion: A dog chain two feet long; a safety razor blade, nearly whole; a suspender buckle; 179 fragments of glass, hay wire, staples, nails and screws. According to the doctor, Buzzell had been making the "collection" with suicidal intent since last December.

ONE ENLISTMENT IS SECURED HERE

Oscar Kolberg, this city, yesterday enlisted in the field artillery, regular army, through the local recruiting station. He will be sent to the 4th division at Camp Dodge, Ia. His term is three years.

Several other applicants for enlistment are considering the matter, said Lieut. R. H. Slider, in command of the special contingent working up recruits here. He stated that on Monday he will move his headquarters to Beloit, but will leave a detachment of men here at the post-office to carry on the work. He plans to send men to Monroe, Whitewater, and Elkhorn to endeavor to get men to join the army.

YALE FRESHMEN ARE OF HIGH INTELLIGENCE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 6.—Psychological intelligence tests given the Yale freshmen class show that 99.2 percent of the class received A or B grades, donating intelligence above the average, it was announced today.

Comparison of these tests with similar ones given in the army show, according to an analysis made at Yale, that Yale freshmen are "a highly selected group and rate higher as a group than a large sampling of army officers."

The reports point out that 100 percent of the freshmen exceeded the median in points reached by drafted men; 84 percent exceeded the score of high school seniors; 69 percent bettered the freshmen of another university and 60 percent exceeded the median score of seniors at that other university.

STRETCHING THE HIGH SCHOOL.

Twenty-five years ago, or about the time the present high school building was erected, if you had said, "Some day in the years to come that building will house 750 pupils in place of the 350 for which it was built," people would have classed you with those visionary folks who were firm in the belief that men would fly in a heavier than air machine. And yet this very thing has happened,—there are about 750 students being cared for at the high school at this time, and the wonder of it is that it is at all possible. There is great congestion, of course, and the "watch your step" warning must be observed. As a steady, regular thing it would wear on all those concerned. In fact is not calculated for the greatest efficiency. As an expediency it is workable.

The rearrangement of all schedules and periods of study was a big undertaking and great credit is due to those responsible. Upon Prin. George A. Bassford falls much of the detail and he is handling the situation extremely well. With the picture in mind of a new and adequate high school, inconveniences and temporary arrangements are borne with patience by all concerned. Our educational body is to be congratulated.

TWO WHO SHOULD BE TRIED.

Belgium will be within her treaty rights in demanding that Germany surrender Dr. Theobald von Bethmann-Hollweg for trial for having "committed acts in violation of the laws and customs of war." It is to be hoped that she will press her claim and that the trial of the former imperial German chancellor will be thorough. Hollweg already has assumed responsibility for the initial violation of Belgian neutrality and has begged to be allowed to take William Hohenzollern's place in answering for the great crime of causing the war. This latter, it is, of course, impossible to accede to. Hollweg should bear responsibility for his own acts; he cannot secure immunity for his former master vicariously. But the trial of the ex-chancellor might be made the means of adducing evidence bearing on the responsibility of the Hohenzollerns which would constrain Holland, in the public interest, to revise its judgment with respect to handing over that individual for trial. In any event, if Hollweg is placed in the criminal dock, as we hope he will be, it should be possible to develop for public information every fact about the German government's responsibility for the war. Hollweg himself, as well as others, has written on this subject since the armistice, but the testimony has been ex parte and it has been possible to check it up only in part. In ordinary course the world would have to wait possibly half a century in order to get a true historical perspective of the conspiracies hatched in Berlin that set the world afire. The trial of Hollweg could be made a short cut to the truth.

England, it is reported, will demand Admiral von Tirpitz and some other German naval officers for trial. She should get them. If any one can be held criminally responsible for the U-boat atrocities Von Tirpitz should be.

LOOK FOR THE SILVER LINING.

The world's greatest need today is people who are able to see a silver lining. To see that though things may seem a little bit out of kelter at the moment, they are not nearly so bad as they seem, and as so many would have us believe. You are safe in putting down the man—or woman—who tells you the world is headed straight for the bottomless pit as having a personal interest in its arrival there.

Whether they call you aside and whisper it in your ear or shriek it from the housetops, it isn't true. Men and women are needed who will believe the contrary; that America was never so prosperous as today; that the world only needs a little judicious helping to get it back on its feet again. It has had a lot of nonsense knocked out of it, and it is not to be wondered at that it is still a bit dizzy. All that is needed is that we get down to business and clean up the mess.

With statesmen, would-be statesmen and agitators, paid and unpaid, and labor leaders and drivers milling around and trying to grab off the biggest handful of advantage from the situation, a little confusion among the onlookers ought not to be taken too seriously.

How are they to know that most of the tumult and shouting is by those who have axes to grind, and that if they were once suppressed and everybody would quiet down and quit talking and flinging their arms about for 10 days, the eleventh day would see this old world going on better than before, with everybody exclaiming "What a bully place to live in!"

MONEY INTO THE FIRE.

Not many persons would consider setting apart one day each year upon which to count 15 crisp one-dollar bills off the family's roll and throw them into the fireplace. Yet, in effect, that is what the average family does.

The fire loss of the United States in 1918 was more than three dollars per capita, nine-tenths of it preventable. The case is, in fact, even worse. Every minute of every day, the whole year through, Uncle Sam is burning up a five-hundred dollar note—most of it unnecessarily.

But the outstanding fact, and what ought to be called to emphatic attention, is that it is the consumer who pays. It is customary to ask first after news of a conflagration if there is insurance, as if the insurance company pays. But it is property owners and business men who pay the premiums, and the price of premiums must of necessity be added to the price of the goods they sell or the service they render.

The consumer pays, not in the end, but in the beginning.

Fewer fires, lower fire losses, lower insurance rates, lower prices, is the certain circle in the power of American citizens to effect.

Every man who is careful to avoid fire keeps dollars in his pocket.

Chicago detectives have credited the ouija board with having located in New York a man sought for desertion. The supreme test will come when weejee is asked to find a lost collar button.

Pondering on some of the mouthings in behalf of free speech leads us to reflect that it is no wonder silence long ago was declared to be golden.

It is officially reported that the farmer is getting less for his products while the consumer pays more. It is the middleman against both ends.

Federal officials say that of the 3,600 radicals under detention 3,000 are "perfect" ark cases. A perfect 36 is considered more modish.

With sugar selling at 11 to 22 cents one is forced to wonder if the sliding scale is the price or the weighing apparatus.

Influenza is reported to be milder this year, but that doesn't warrant anybody making the precaution less stringent.

Holland has one tenant who will not threaten to move no matter how much the landlord raises the rent.

Who can blame those senators who are determined that a treaty compromise shall not compromise them?

JUST FOLKS

THE JOY OF LIFE.

Millions have lived and millions have died
And never been known to the world outside.
Yet laughter and love were theirs to know
And the joys of life on this earth below.
They've known the charm of the summer sky,
The song of the streams as they traveled by,
And, missing all which renown could give,
They found life good and were glad to live.

Why do men hunger so much for fame
That they spurn the joys which all men may claim?
Why do men slave to time's bitter end
For silver and gold they will never spend?
Why do they weary themselves and break
For a few men's cheers or a bauble's sake,
When life gives freely to all below
The self-same joys which the rich may know?

Life is laughter and love and friends,
And peace at night when the toiling ends;
It's hearing the burdens that come by day,
And at evening putting them all away;
It's earning a neighbor's grateful smile,
And making the humblest of tasks worth while;
It's in loving children who bear your name—
And these you can know without wealth or fame.

Millions have lived on this kindly earth
And shared in its beauty and gentle mirth;
They have loved its skies and its friendly trees
And its mountains high and its roving seas
Though never by fame were their mantles kissed,
And gold and silver were joys they missed,
They gathered the sweets which life had to give
And they loved the world and were glad to live.

Their Opinions

A wool merchant from South America says that there is more wool there than America and Europe together can possibly use. He adds that an increase in the price of clothing for Americans is absolutely unnecessary. It sounds fine, but the average American is inclined to fear that it doesn't mean anything.—Lansing State Journal.

It is small beer in members of congress questioning the loyalty of Mr. Gompers. His presentation of reasons against the passage of the sedition bill in the form proposed was of value to many citizens outside of labor unions. His methods may be questioned as to labor troubles, but not his loyalty.—Racine Journal-News.

The action of the board of regents of the University of Wisconsin in advancing the salaries of the members of the faculty will be generally commended. The only trouble about it is that the action was not taken soon enough.—Fond du Lac Commonwealth.

Boom in Salvage

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN, Director
Janesville Daily Gazette Information Bureau,
Washington, D. C.

Washington, Feb. 6.—Salvage of sunken ships is a proposition which is attracting widespread interest. Numerous companies have been formed to raise hulls and recover cargoes. Britain has reclaimed over 500 of her 6,000 wrecked ships, and United States salvage companies plan to raise such of our craft as are in shallow water or can be most easily found and lifted.

New inventions in diving and salvage apparatus, removal of mines from the sea, and the demand for tonnage all combine to stimulate the wrecking business, and make it probable that operations will be extended to mid-ocean and to localities hitherto inaccessible to divers.

All the famous treasures buried in the earth by medieval misers and pirates are insignificant compared with the incalculable fortunes sunk in the sea. Seven billion dollars is a conservative estimate of value of the sea's hoard before the war, and it is believed that after four years of war this figure is doubled.

Davey Jones' Locker Safe

Davy Jones' locker has so far been as good as locked to ambitious plunderers of the deep. Divers are willing to take the chance of meeting sharks and other monsters. They will brave the danger of being trapped in a rotted ship, or of their apparatus becoming faulty. But they cannot by sheer courage overcome their physical limitations, especially the effect of heavy pressure on the body, and this has protected the sea treasures better than their shark policemen, the darkness and the enveloping sands.

Until a few years ago, ships sunk below 250 feet were as safe from treasure-seekers as if they had been encased in unbreakable glass. Divers could see them, and occasionally a wrecking company would snatch a bit of cargo from a hold, but the great mass of Davy Jones' property remained intact.

Many of the sunken treasures famous by tradition are now declared to be the product of various story-tellers' imagination. Pirates, for instance, are popularly regarded as a millionaire class, whereas realists maintain that most of Captain Kidd's fellow buccaneers would never have had to pay an income tax had their government levied tax. Thus is another illusion cracked—but not shattered, for enough buried and sunken treasure is now and again brought to light to keep the faith of the romanticists from wavering.

It Really Has Happened

The fascinating tales of the pirates' treasure ships may be discredited, but it is a matter of history that fortunes in gold, silver, and precious stones have for centuries been carried over the seas wherever ships could travel, and many craft have been sucked under by storms, whirlpools, and strong currents.

Staid British historians tell, for example, of Sir Francis Drake capturing a fleet of ships in the harbor of the Azores and recklessly ordering them sunk, laden as they were. This command sent down four or five million dollars worth of precious metals which have never been disturbed.

Another famed example of a treasure ship that sank was a Spanish galleon lost off the English coast in 1874 with a load of gold estimated at $85,000,000. Then there are the unrecovered cargoes of the Spanish Armada, exaggerated perhaps as to value, but undoubtedly worth reclaiming.

The Lusitania, laden with seven million dollars worth of gold and other metals and five million in securities, as well as jewels and other private property, is one of the greatest prizes to be angled for. Experts agree that the Lusitania will never be raised from its position, 285 feet below the surface, but a company is now awaiting favorable weather to go after the indestructible part of its cargo.

The Merida, which sank off Cape Charles, is another untapped source of wealth, which is to be tackled next summer by a New York diver. The storms and treacherous currents that wreck so many ships in certain places endanger equally the company that attempts their salvage in rough weather. For this season, salvage companies are now confining themselves to plans and study, so that when spring comes they can launch their offensives without loss of time.

Art of Salvage Is Young

With all our boasted ingenuity and progress in the art of salvage, we still have far to go before we can sweep the ocean bed of all its beauty. Systematic salvage dates back only a century or two. Before that, divers wore no special costumes, and stayed under water only so long as they could hold their breath—at the most two or three minutes at a time. Then in the seventeenth century came a leather diving suit, and after that the rubber and canvas suit with its steel helmet and tubes to supply air. This rubber suit is still worn by river and shallow water divers, as it is easy to work in and allows the wearer considerable use of his hands and feet. The main disadvantage is that the diver must be let down and raised slowly because of the changes in pressure. The pressure of the atmosphere at sea level is 15 pounds to the square inch. At one hundred feet below the sea the pressure of the water is 50 pounds to a square inch, while at two hundred feet it is 87 pounds. A diver wearing a rubber suit cannot descend far below one hundred feet as the suit is likely to collapse and cause his instant death.

Armor Supplants Rubber

The rubber equipment is now supplanted by rigid armor for deep sea-diving. The diving suit was weighted down only by sufficient lead to keep the diver submerged. The armor weighs around 500 pounds, and is rather like the metal upholstery of a feudal knight, the big difference being that the knight could stand up in his trappings, whereas the diver is absolutely helpless in his until some of the weight is offset by a few tons of water pressure.

After he is slung down to two or three hundred feet the armored diver can walk about stiffly, and even bend his arms. He does not have to worry about water pressure, because the armor withstands it just as a submarine's armor does. Nor is he concerned with air troubles, for the most modern patents include an air generating plant, somewhat like a gas mask canister. This does away with pumping air down to the diver, always a dangerous business, as tubes are apt to spring a leak or be cut by sharks.

The one drawback to the human tank idea is the stiffness of the armor which necessitates use of hooks instead of hands, and limits the diver's work on the wreck. However, he can stay down comfortably two or three hours, a feat impossible with the rubber suit, and he can make full observation and telephone to the surface boat reports as to needed repairs or work to be done. The telephone attachment in the helmet, which permits divers to communicate with each other and with the surface, is one of the most valuable inventions of submarine engineering.

Diver Mends Leak

The armored diver locates the leak in the ship and plans repairs and methods of raising the hull. When the hull is mended the ship is raised, usually by pontoons. Steel cables are slung under the hull and attached to the barges on the surface. Compressed air is forced into the holds to take the place of the water. This lightens the ship, so that it rises, guarded by the barge pontoons, and is then towed to shore.

If the armored diver is to help raise a ship, he is often sent down in a submarine bell of some sort. One of the latest devices is like a U-boat in that it is a steel encased chamber with motors to carry it about the ocean floor. It is let down by cables and a diver opens the door of a compartment shut off from the mud cabin, and closes the door behind him. He puts on an armored suit, and water is let into the compartment to offset the weight of the armor. He then opens an outside door to the compartment and steps out onto the ocean floor. This adaptation of the submarine was contrived by Simon Lake, the inventor of the modern submarine. Mr. Lake is himself interested in salvage projects, and expects to recover by submarine what his original invention sent to the bottom of the sea.

PERSONETTE

THE BATTLE HYMN OF THE REPUBLIC

Mrs. Phoebe Leckie of the bureau of passport control, state department, who is also a poet and writer of great ability, has been handling about 300 passports per day for people going to Cuba. She wrote "The Bottle Hymn of the Republic," which goes like this:

There is a happy land
Not far away,
Where they have booze to drink
Nine times a day.
Oh, hear the Pilgrims cry,
As they on to glory hie,
"Homeland, you are too dry,
Cuba for me!"

Bright in that Happy Land,
Gleams every eye;
Kept by a loving hand
Booze cannot die.
Oh then to glory flee!
There from prohibition free,
There one may drunken be Eternally.

Come to that Happy Land,
Come, come away!
Why will you thirsty wait,
Why still delay!
Shout as you journey on—
"Hallelujah! Barleycorn!
Dear Spirits Land, I come!
Cuba for me!"

Around the State

...A demand presented by the Federal Union to the school board here demanding a $10 per month increase in the wages of janitors of the public schools, may cost the janitors a raise that had already been decided upon. The salary committee had a report ready for the board giving raises of $5 to $10 to the custodians, but upon meeting with the peremptory demands of the union, the letter was referred to the committee which is reconsidering the raise.

Marinette—Bishop Paul Rhode of Green Bay and the Rev. Father Pecischa, Polish pastor of this city, have abandoned a contemplated trip to Europe. They had made all plans for a visit to Rome, and then a trip to Poland, their fatherland, and had obtained passports; but advices this week from Rome suggested that they postpone the journey until next year because of unsettled conditions in Europe.

Stevens Point—John S. McGinley, 52, one of Portage county's best known farmers, dropped dead at his home in Buena Vista. His body was found in the cellar where he had gone to replenish the wood in a heating stove. He is survived by his widow and 13 months old baby.

KILLED BY PEA-SHOOTER

London, Eng.—As a result of a pea from a peashooter striking her in the face, Mrs. Jessie Archer, 56 of Lollard street, Lambeth, died from shock. The sound of a motor horn, or any scare, might have killed her, said the doctor who made the post mortem examination at a Lambeth inquest.

GROCER'S CART AS HEARSE

London, Eng.—At the funeral of William Dicker, an Esher green grocer, the coffin, in accordance with his wish, was conveyed to the church in his grocer's cart, drawn by a white pony, with which he used to make the rounds of the village.

London, Eng.—At a sale of Gloucestershire old spot pigs, one animal sold for $1,650. Six others fetched over $920 each.

What we need in th' Senate is a few big guns that kin shoot beyond th' next election. A feller likes t' tell how cheap he got somethin' an' his wife likes t' boast about how she got stung.

ON THE SPUR of the MOMENT

ROY K. MOULTON

THE BOY

He is only a little feller,
There's a lot that he doesn't know;
But his laugh it is sweet and meller,
And his soul is as white as snow.
There isn't so much in his noodle
And instinct is all that he's got,
He is beginnin' to toddle
And climb up the old what-not.

He is just beginnin' to wonder
What this world is and why,
He is just beginning to ponder,
He is just beginnin' to try
To solve this here thing called existence,
To measure the journey ahead,
And wonder how he'll make the distance,
That all of his forebears have tread.

His eyes are as clear as the morning,
The sun kissed ephemeral blue;
The tint of the daybreak adorning
The east in a wonderful hue.
His gaze is inquiring, appealing,
There's naught of connivance or guile,
And when a gay mood comes a-stealing,
There is heaven itself in his smile.

He doesn't know much, but he's learning,
He knows not the right from the wrong;
But his wee little brain is a-yearning
To grasp the portent of life's song.
I wish I could keep him a baby,
This atom of humanity,
He doesn't mean much to you, maybe—
But he's world and heaven to me.

PILGRIMS PROGRESS IN SOCIETY.
VIII.

To make a bit in $5,000 a year society, such as Luella and I affect, it is absolutely necessary to have ancestors. Ancestors will happen in the best of families—but nowhere else. For instance the James Frothingham Binks's have theirs traced away back to the flood. The original Binks was on the Ark, although the history of the time fails to mention him. Luella in her moments of confidence, in the privacy of our own apartment, has whispered that, if there is anything in heredity, the original Binks was one of the simians.

Soon after launching our frail bark upon the sea of society, Luella and I began looking for ancestors. A relative of Luella's tried to discourage her. This relative had tried to join the D. A. R., and had searched until she found that one of her Revolutionary ancestors had been shot for desertion and the other one was locked up for twelve years for snidging on a government bean contract.

After giving up Luella's line entirely, we concentrated on mine, and then our discoveries began. My ancestors seemed to be swift movers. We would no sooner get one of them traced to Salem, Mass., than we found he had moved to Westbury, L. I. Finally we cornered Great-great-great Uncle Phineas and, while he had unfortunately been shot for selling grog to the Indians, he left a family record that reached away back to William the Silent and several miles beyond.

THE HEIGHT OF OPTIMISM.

Saloon fixtures, mirrors, plate glass, wanted for cash. Box 262.

What is he going to do with 'em when he gets 'em?

William Judkins Hewitt says he wants to be the first strap-hanger on the proposed subway to Cuba.

After paying our federal and state income taxes we are going to have $1.97 left. We suggest a city income tax because we don't feel safe being left alone with so much money.

The Gazette maintains an information bureau at Washington, D. C., under the direction of Frederic J. Haskin. Questions will be answered on any subject. Those desiring information, may write a letter to the Janesville Daily Gazette Information Bureau, Washington D. C., and enclose a stamp. The letter will be answered by the bureau.

Q. Is the shortage of school teachers in the United States great? C. IL.

A. The United States Bureau of Education says that because of the impossibility of living decently on the salaries paid, there is an acute shortage of school teachers in the country, and unless the wages of teachers are increased this situation will become more serious next fall. The bureau estimates that about 28,000 schools, mostly rural, are now closed because of the lack of teachers. There are also about 50,000 persons teaching school in the United States who have not the minimum qualifications. They have to be used because they are the only teachers available.

Q. What has been the increase in the number of shipyards in the United States since before the war? T. E. D.

A. In April, 1917, there were in this country only 61 shipyards with 234 ways on which vessels of 3,300 deadweight tons could be constructed. In November, 1919, there were 223 yards with 1,098 ways, or about four times as many as there were two years before.

Q. Which is heavier, a quart of milk or a quart of cream? E. R.

A. The Department of Agriculture says that a quart of milk is the heavier. This is explained by the fact that there is more fat in cream than in milk, and that the fat is lighter than liquid.

Q. What is the annual salary of Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor? M. W. Y.

A. He is paid a salary of $10,000, which is the same as the base pay of a general in the United States army.

Q. What was the largest number of troops carried by the Leviathan on any one trans-Atlantic trip? L. M. H.

A. The record number of troops carried by the Leviathan, which was the largest ship in the transport service, was 12,000. This ship has 11 decks.

Q. How many times did Christ appear on earth after His resurrection? A. S. D.

A. The Bible records 13 physical appearances. Ten of those occurred before the Ascension and three afterwards. The last three were to Saints Stephen, Paul, and John.

Q. What does the word "soviet" mean? I. M. C.

A. Soviet is a Russian word, which literally translated means council. The name is most usually applied to workmen and soldiers' councils.

Q. How did the percentage of illiteracy of the various armies of Europe engaged in the World war compare? R. U. C.

A. Examination of recruits for the army and navy of the leading European countries showed the following percentage of illiteracy: Germany, 0.11; France, 4.90; England, 5.90; Austria, 23.80; Hungary, 28.10; Italy, 38.30; Russia, 61.70. The percentage of illiteracy in the United States army was 7.6.

Q. Will you give me some facts concerning Emma Goldman, the revolutionist who was recently deported to Russia? F. J. W.

A. She came to the United States from Russia with relatives when a young woman, and first came before the public in 1893, when she was arrested in New York for inciting to riot by her speeches. She claims to be an atheist and disbeliever in all law, whether divine or human. She was arrested and confined repeatedly, and was said to have incited Czolgolz to assassinate President McKinley. She is about 53 years of age.

Q. What were the returns of the recent vote taken in the colleges of the country on the league of nations? A. M. I.

A. The vote was taken in 113 colleges and universities, less than three-quarters of the whole number, and was participated in by 158,078 persons. The division was as follows: For unqualified ratification, 48,232; for Senator Lodge's reservations, 27,970; for compromise reservation, 61,494; for Senator Knox's reservations, 6,449; for rejection of the treaty, 13,993.

Q. How much gold was mined in 1918? F. V. S.

A. The world's production of gold in 1918 is estimated at $380,924,500, as compared with $470,466,214 in 1915, the greatest production record in a single year.

SOANTIER CLOTHES

New York.—The cost of women's because there will be considerably less of them if the predictions of a fashionable Fifth avenue male milliner and dressmaker, who arrived from Paris recently, are correct. The latest modes France is sending to the United States, he said, are:

No stockings, extremely short skirts, no sleeves, and sandals.

REVIVE DEAD TONGUES

Lond, Eng.—The prime minister has appointed a committee to inquire into the position to be assigned to the language, literature and history of ancient Greece and Rome in the educational system of the United Kingdom and to advise as to the means by which the proper study of these subjects may be maintained and improved.

MUSKRAT PELTS SOAR

New York.—The tremendous demand for the skin of the humble muskrat, "Hudson seal," when it appears as milady's coat or muff, has won it a high rank in the indictment against the high cost of living, according to a statement issued by the New York Fur Auctions Sales Corporation.

The statement says that Michigan and Eastern rats are now sold at $3.75 each, as compared with 65 to 60 cents in 1915, and that the western Canadian variety brings $2.60, as against 80 cents in pre-war days.

MAY OUST TENANT HELD "UNDESIRABLE."

New York.—The Appellate term of the Supreme Court handed down a decision upholding the right of a landlord to oust a tenant whom he deems undesirable without giving any reason for his action.

The judgment of the Municipal Court declaring that Miss Jeanne Lorraine could not be dispossessed from her West Side apartment by the Waitt Construction Company was reversed and a new trial ordered.

"It may well be," said Justice Lehman in writing the opinion, "that the landlord need not show in fact that the tenant was undesirable, or that he had any reasonable grounds for deeming it undesirable, and yet, since his option to terminate the lease arises only if he deems the tenancy undesirable, the petition should allege this."

DAUGHTERS OF NEBRASKA NOT INTERESTED IN BRYAN

New York—The New York daughters of Nebraska, at a reception in the home of the president, Mrs. Dexter D. Ashley, expressed themselves as not being interested in any future political move taken by William Jennings Bryan.

When one of the women was asked if the Nebraska society planned to give Mr. Bryan a reception when he comes to New York, she answered:

"I have not heard that he is coming and I hope that I don't."

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our many friends for the kindness and sympathy shown us during our recent sorrow and for the beautiful floral offerings.

CRIPPLES TOO NOISY

London, Eng.—A claim by Mrs. C. A. Cowell, of 75 Queen's Gate, London, who was disturbed by the noise made by limbless men, has been heard by the War Losses Commission.

Her counsel stated that the Ministry of Pensions acquired houses on either side of her house for the purpose of hostels and workshops for the making of artificial limbs for disabled soldiers. Owing to the noise caused by the limbless men walking about on the bare boards life became unbearable for his client. In consequence of the nuisance she had to remove to another dwelling.

The chairman said that it was not within the province of the commission to consider a claim made in respect of alleged annoyance. He could only deal with the claim relating to the acquisition of the house by the Government.

The result will be communicated in due course.

LADY ASTOR HAS ROUTED LOWER HOUSE GLOOM

London.—Lady Astor is hugely enjoying the attentions she is receiving in the House of Commons. Her vivacity is infectious. Veteran members of Parliament are always smiling at her. They enter and leave the House with a new elasticity. There is a scramble to sit near her. The Labor leaders seem to look up at her, and are fed with a smile that illumines the whole chamber.

She wants to chat with everybody, and when, the other night, "Order, order!" because she was talking to a member on the floor of the House, Lady Astor at once skipped across the bar and airily waved her hand at the chair as if to say: "All right, old man; never mind, I daresay I'll do it again before long."

Cornwall, Eng.—With an ordinary hook and line, Miss Daisy M. Jewell, aged 17, caught a shark six feet long.

FORT ATKINSON IS OUT TO SPILL BLOOD AGAINST LOCAL HIGH

Fort Atkinson high school basketball team comes to Janesville tonight with their basketball eye considerably sharpened since last they met and were defeated by the local boys. Because of this improved condition of their playing, the visitors are expecting to make a clean up. Game starts at 7:30 p. m.

Meantime the Blues have been practicing all week under the guidance of Coach Crabtree, who has mastered the flu, and while still a little weak, is able to do much of the coaching. During his absence from the actual supervision of the playing, the boys got into a few bad habits in practice such as holding which the coach has worked this week to overcome. Thus the team will take to the court tonight in better condition than for several weeks.

Nothing new will be tried by the local players. They will stick to their method of a strong defensive in the first half while taking as many baskets as possible with this form of play. In the latter half they will open with a smashing offensive.

Hager, Gridley, Tunstead, Newman and Powers will start the game. Smith and Bick will act as substitutes.

MONROE HIGH FIVE BEATS STOUGHTON

(By Special Correspondent)

Monroe, Feb. 6.—Out in front all the way and leading by a long distance, the Monroe basketball team galloped down the court last night and crossed the line by a score of 38-5, defeating Stoughton. At no time were the local boys in danger. Teamwork won their part was swift and clever.

Stoughton fought hard to make an impression on the score, but they were affected by a streak of hard luck, especially in basket shooting. Larsen, Stoughton left guard, was removed from the game in the first half with four personal fouls.

The lineups:

Monroe (38)		Stoughton (5)
Rood	lf	Johnson
Carr	rf	Kirby
Hauser	c	Usher
Wood	lg	Larsen
Bruni	rg	Sundt

Field goals—Rood, 5; Carr, 4; Hauser, 3; Wood, 3; Bruni, 1; Johnson, 2.

Free throws—Carr, 6 out of 9; Johnson, 1 out of 4; Usher, missed 4.

Fouls—Carr, 3; Hauser, 2; Wood, 1; Bruni, 1; Larsen, 4; Usher, 1; Kirby, 5.

Substitutions—Rauth for Wood; Galle for Hauser; Lynch for Larsen.

MILTON COLLEGE VICTOR OVER HIBBING

(By Gazette Correspondent.)

Milton, Feb. 6.—Playing stellar basketball against their heavier opponents, the Milton basketball team staged a "comeback" Thursday night, defeating Hibbing College (Minn.) 29 to 22. Although the Milton defense was ragged at times, the offense had a punch which was too much for the husky northerners. Hibbing started the scoring with a neat field goal by Murphy, which was followed a minute later by a long shot by Kakuske. Again the visitors scored only to have Milton tie it up once more. By speedy team work Hibbing secured another basket and added a free throw, but the home team came back with the same, making the score 7 all. Toward the end of the half the visiting team began to tire and Milton leaped into the lead, the half ending 13 to 10. The second half was largely a reptition of the first, with Milton gradually increasing her lead. During the last ten minutes Hibbing started a rally which was stopped by a shift in the Milton lineup, Oakley getting into the game.

Kakuske was the highest scorer, caging six baskets and playing a good floor game. Lanphere made three pretty shots from a good distance, and Babcock, although closely guarded, contributed four more. Hibbing's team work was the outstanding feature of their game, most of their points coming from short shots well earned. Murphy and Herrett led their team in scoring with five and four baskets respectively.

Hemming of Janesville refereed the game, giving very good satisfaction. The line-up and score follow:

Milton (29)		Hibbing (22)
Lanphere	rf	Murphy
Babcock (capt.)	lf	Herrett
Randolph	c	Burkman
Kakuske	rg	Kaiser
Curtis	lg	Friday

Field Goals—Kakuske 6, Babcock 4, Lanphere 3, Murphy 5, Herrett 4, Burkman 1.

Free Throws—Lanphere 3, Kaiser 2.

Substitutions—Milton, Oakley for Randolph; Randolph for Curtis. Hibbing, Darlington for Friday.

Referee—Hemming. Scorer, Ferrill. Timekeeper, Burdick.

As a preliminary to the main contest, the college second team and Milton High School played a hard-fought game which the seconds finally won, 9 to 7. The high school guards had their opponents covered most of the time and the college men had to resort to long shots. The first half ended 5 to 0 in favor of the seconds, but a spirited attack in the second half nearly won the game for the highs. Daland's floor game and free throwing featured the play, he making 5 throws out of 7 tries. Sayre and McNitt both showed up well on the floor.

The line-up and score follows:

Milton Seconds (9)		Milton High School (7)
Stillman, J.	rf	McNitt (capt.)
Johnson	lf	Stillman, T.
Sayre (capt.)	c	Barnes
Daland	lg	Van Horn
Hemphill	rg	Bingham

Field Goals—Daland 1, Stillman 1, McNitt 3.

Free Throws—Daland 5, Barnes 1.

Substitutions—Shibu for Johnson.

"I Couldn't Be Happier," Says Man Who Weds Girl Brother Wronged

Mrs. Perley R. Spiker and her husband's brother, Guy Spiker, on their way to Ellis Island to greet Miss Emily Knowles.

NEW YORK—Guy Spiker, Baltimore, is happy at the prospect of spending the remainder of his days with the pretty young English woman, Miss Emily Knowles, whom his brother, Perley R. Spiker, wronged while in England as a member of the A. E. F.

When Miss Knowles and her three months' old baby arrived at Ellis Island, on funds supplied by the wife of the baby's father, she was met and cordially greeted by Mrs. Perley Spiker and by Guy Spiker, her brother-in-law, who had promised to marry Miss Knowles before he had ever seen her.

The baby was the center of all eyes, Mrs. Spiker "appropriating" it, saying she "loved it and it was a dear little thing."

Miss Knowles seemed relieved when the bit of humanity, wrapped in a big brown checkered shawl, was put back into her arms. Mrs. Spiker is determined to adopt the infant, however.

"I am happy that everything has turned out as it has," said Miss Knowles. Guy Spiker (Perley Spiker's brother) is kind and generous to want to marry me. Guy and I will be married at once.

"I want very much to keep the baby myself, but, in view of Mrs. Spiker's unusual kindness, I may be willing that she should technically adopt it. But I will see my baby often."

Mrs. Spiker emphasized that it was a lifelong observance of the golden rule that had prompted her not only to forgive her husband, but to do everything possible to right the wrong done Miss Knowles.

Mrs. Spiker said that as a school teacher in her native town at Harrisburg, W. V., she had taught Guy, as her pupil, the all-importance of the golden rule.

There's always a thrill to the circus story and almost every diminutive star is pathetically sweet and unusually attractive when playing a daring little bareback rider or trapeze worker. Shirley Mason, who is always appealing in all of her character portrayals, looks just like a bunch of fluffy daintiness in her newest Fox picture, "Her Elephant Man."

She is such a small little person that even the big Jumbo rises up to protect her, and Miss Shirley seems to be enjoying his protection here. Miss Mason says she just loves nice big elephants and if they were only a more convenient size she would like to have an apartment pet of one.

Just Yellow Mustard for Backache, Lumbago

Grandmother's old mussy mustard plaster or poultice generally brought relief allright even in the severest cases, but it burned and blistered like blazes.

"Heat eases pain"—reduces the inflammation and scatters congestion but you'll find that while Begy's Mustarine, made of true yellow mustard and other pain destroyers is just as hot as the old fashioned plaster it is much quicker, cleaner and more effective and cannot blister.

It's a great external remedy—just rub it on wherever aches, pains, inflammation, congestion or swelling exists and in a very few minutes the relief you have longed for surely arrives because "Heat eases pain." 30 and 60 cents at druggists or by mail S. C. Wells & Co., LeRoy, N. Y.

Government Insurance Permanent

Misleading and incorrect statements relative to the permanency of government insurance are being circulated by individuals engaged in attempted "twisting" of insurance, Director R. G. Cholmoley-Jones of the bureau announces. A specific and typical report received was to the effect that some of the individuals had boarded a naval vessel at Philadelphia and told the sailors that government insurance would not be good after five years.

"Government life insurance for veterans of the great war is a permanent proposition," said Director Jones. "Misleading statements have been made to the effect that government insurance will cease at the end of five years after the war, or that it will be turned over to private companies. Such statements are absolutely false and without foundation. There is, however, a requirement that the temporary term insurance held during the war, which increased in cost from year to year, be changed or converted into one of the six permanent forms of government life insurance, (ordinary life, 20-payment life, 30-payment life, 20-year endowment, 30-year endowment, or endowment at the age of 62), within five years after the formal declaration of peace by the president, if the insured desires to continue to be protected. This permanent insurance does not increase in premium cost as the insured grows older.

"Improper conduct by the individuals I have referred to is in direct opposition to the attitude of the great life insurance companies."

To relieve any confusion that may exist in the minds of former service men on account of the special provision of lapsed war terms insurance which authorized reinstatement up to Dec. 31, 1919 regardless of date of discharge, announcement is made by the bureau that provisions for reinstatement of lapsed or canceled insurance, within 18 months from date of discharge, upon payment of only two months' payments on the amount of insurance to be reinstated, provided the insured is in as good health as at the date of discharge or expiration of the grace period whichever is the later date, and so states in his application, still holds good.

Provision that discharged service men are permitted to reinstate at any time within three calendar months following the month of discharge by merely paying the two months' premiums, without making a formal application or a statement as to health, is also still in force.

The provisions for reinstatement do not protect a man until he actually reinstates. If he waits he may not be in as good health as he was at the time of discharge and consequently may not be able to secure reinstatement.

BIG FISH SYNDICATE

London, Eng.—A big fish syndicate has been formed which will not only own the trawlers but also retail fish shops and fried ship shops. It is intended to cut out the middleman altogether; and fish when landed from the trawlers, several fleets of which are being purchased, will be distributed to the different centers by a fleet of 100 steam lorries. It is stated by the promoters that they will be able to sell fish at greatly reduced prices.

DEATH RATE DROPS

Philadelphia. — Despite the increased cost of living and a decrease in amount of milk used by infants in Philadelphia, the infant mortality rate in 1919 was the lowest in the history of the city, according to a statement yesterday by Director Krusen of Health and Charities.

Approximately ninety of each 1,000 babies born in this city last year died, according to statistics of the Bureau of Health, while in 1918 the rate was 125 deaths for each 1,000 births.

New York, N. Y.—Wedding rings for men as a protection against "vamps," and as a warning to women against "predatory males" was advocated by Miss Lucille Pugh, prominent New York attorney.

"If men were compelled by pressure of public opinion to wear wedding rings the game as women they would be less inclined to engage in entangling alliances," Miss Pugh said in an interview. "At the same time women would be warned that these men were the 'property' of other women."

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Letters May be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Just a word to dissatisfied wives who are in love with another man.

I am not going to scold you, for you have my heartfelt sympathy, but I only want to try to show you the attitude to take to make you less miserable and help you to do right.

First of all take an inventory of your own shortcomings and magnify every good quality your husband possesses. If you are mothers, cherish your children and live in and for them. Keep busy at some useful work all of the time or in reading helpful literature and doing something to make someone else happy. Attend church and take an active interest in everything around you. But don't sit down and indulge in self pity.

Don't do anything purposely to tempt the other man or yourself. Treat him as nearly like any other acquaintance as it is possible for you to do. Stop thinking about divorces and then don't get the idea that you are committing a great sin. Love cannot be controlled or understood. It will go where it will, no matter how hard the struggle to keep it where it should be. But all women can keep themselves pure and virtuous if they will to do so. Your plain duty is to give yourself to your husband and children. Yes, you owe the other man a duty, too, but it is to help him to do his duty to his family and the world and you can do that best by going on bravely about your own affairs and allowing him to do the same.

Will you suffer? Yes, but it will be a better kind of suffering than you would have to endure if you were the means of breaking up two homes and causing numerous heartaches. Hide your own heartache in making happiness for others. If you are big enough to do this you can approach death, which comes to all, "like one who wraps the drapery of his couch about him and lies down to pleasant dreams." COMPREHENSION.

Your letter is an inspiration and will help many.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of nineteen. I was very much in love with a young man a little older. He made me believe he cared for me. When I knew him better I learned that I was only one of many.

He is the only fellow among the young men I know who shows an utter disregard for his word. Yet he seems so sincere that I cannot tell what to think of him.

We were engaged and he kissed me. Now I am humiliated to be in company with other nice men when he is in the crowd.

A boy friend wants to love me and has asked me for my love. He is a treasure, but does not know how much I loved this other man and that he kissed me. Would it be honest to marry this friend and not tell him? I have tried by letter and he will not understand. My pride is terribly hurt, for I only meant to really love one man. Should I refuse to marry the other man? We are congenial and he has loved me so long that I feel sure of him.

I would not like to have a secret from my husband, yet it will be a blow to him. I can remain single as well as not. Still I want a happy home some day. I have a wonderful mother. My father is dead. Mother wants me to stay single for a few years. NITA.

I agree with your mother that you are too young to marry. Your first sweetheart has not ruined your life by any means. Sometime you will love another man even more and he will care as much for you that your confession will be received with sympathy and understanding. There is no spot on your character, but on the boy's because he received your kisses of love when he did not deserve them.

She Married an Average Man

By ZOE BECKLEY.

Hurrying with my trouble to my wise and faithful friend Athena, I found her gone from home at the summons of her daughter, whose month-old baby is sick.

Evidently fate wishes me to grope my way out alone. Perhaps that is best. But it is very hard.

I could not force myself to go back to the empty flat. Is there any emptiness so deadly as that left by the going of one's husband, not through death which we can't help, but through discord which we should have helped!

I walked up to Central park, took Jim's letter out and read it again in the friendly sunshine and the companionship of romping children.

My heart softened when I reached this passage: "I may have been at fault in many things, and for these failures I am profoundly sorry." I felt like jumping up from my bench and flying to the nearest telegraph office. What a relief it would be to call Jim back, to confess that we had both been at fault, I more than he, perhaps, and to urge him to start anew, with mutual concessions, a deeper understanding!

Then I came to the words, "To you, the things that count are all outside the home. * * * You wish to 'soar.' I am content to work. I have remained faithful to the serious things. Our natures have grown totally different. There is no use saying more."

Our natures have grown totally different—that's the hopeless part of it. And he has remained true to the serious things! That's the exasperating part of it. If I lived a million years I could never make Jim see that living a many-sided life is just as worth while a thing as frying doughnuts and drawing blueprints.

There must be men in the world who are willing to have their wives live lives of their own in ways of their own, not the ways of their husbands. There's John Hast, for instance. He and Athena don't even live under the same roof half the time, and they've been happy and successfully married more than twenty years. * * *

How like Jim to have added that paragraph about my allowance! The very fact that he does not doubt I will accept it proves he doesn't understand the first principles of my nature, even after our two years together.

And the smugness of his phrase: "I shall make no change in the living plans at Hammonds Corners. A housekeeper can readily be secured and I shall be comfortable there."

Ye gods! If Jim had taken me by the hair when I had that rebellious fit and dragged me round the room or beaten me to a pulp I think I could have forgiven him. But this calm acceptance of failure! This assurance of his comfort and adaptability under any circumstances—this is what makes me furious. I would rather be murdered, I think, than left like this, with the soothing promise that a housekeeper will make him quite comfortable!

He even "pities" me! Is "sorry" for me because I don't know what I want."

Well, you're wrong there, Jim! I DO know what I want. It is quite clear to me now. I want change. I want freedom. I want an outlet for myself. I want to walk ALONE. I don't care where it leads me—I want to run as fast as I choose down life's highway, with no bridle and no one's hand upon the reins.

By ELOISE

According to the earliest word received about what spring suits will feature, it seems that there will not be a great deal of change from the styles of last year. The plain tailored suit is going to be as popular as ever. It will be developed in jersey serge and tricotine for the most part. Braid is to be featured on many of the dressier models and vests will also be seen. Skirts remain about the same as usual, perhaps not as tight as last year.

Here is a stunning little suit which is different from the usual. It is featured in an advance display of spring apparel. It is fashioned of navy blue serge with a Spanish bolero jacket and gorgeous satin girdle in Spanish effect. The sleeves of the little coat are only three-quarter length and the skirt is rather full, featuring clusters of pleats at marked intervals. There is a collar on the coat made of satin to match the sash and a navy satin silet is worn with it, thus completing this stunning suit, which is distinctly youthful in its appeal.

London, Eng.—"The salary of $25 is at present worth $10," wrote Dr. Simonds to the Chippenham Board of Guardians, "and I resign my position as medical officer to the cottage home." The board decided to advertise for a successor.

NOT EATING MUCH

Fat folks who are frankly and avowedly fat are crabbed by nature, contrary to a popular belief. It is the folks who are getting fat, yet not avowedly fat, who are good natured. These folks are too good natured about it for their own welfare. They actually welcome the excess weight, in many instances, as a sign of health, whereas it is a sign of impaired physical efficiency and an omen of shortened life.

It is a most amazing thing, how complacently a human being takes a steadily increasing obesity. If a man has a horse worth anything at all, he gives the horse a certain amount of feed every day and a certain amount of exercise, to keep the animal in condition. When a man feeds a horse too much or fails to give the horse a sufficient amount of daily work or exercise to burn up the nutriment assimilated, people feel sorry for the man, for he isn't bright. The horse soon peters out if so unintelligently cared for.

But the man can keep a wife, and feed her all sorts of food and give her any exercise to speak of, and she begins to grow fat, and it is all right, because that is the way with women. A woman is the queerest creature ever made. When she is young and has an ideal youthful figure she yearns to ruin it with corsets, freak shoes built more like slits than anything else, and everything that makes exercise disagreeable, expensive or impossible for her. Then she goes on eating enough for herself and three other women, and the inevitable result is that she piles on a lot of superfluous weight. Then she chases round looking for absurdities which purport to take down flesh here and there, or maybe trying some Epsom salts baths or something equally foolish—anything but exercise and moderate eating.

A woman at 18 has a beautifully youthful, naturally oily skin. All the old girls envy her the perfect skin. But is she contented? She is not. She invests in whatever the wily druggist offers under the title of complexion beautifiers; she yearns to find that non-existent cream or skin food which the far-away actress pronounces just the thing for a swell make-up; she powders her nose and watches her "pores"—whatever they may be—and does about everything in her power to defeat nature and ruin her complexion.

Now it is the simplest, plainest fact in the world that a horse or a man or a woman does not become too fat unless he or she eats too much or exercises too little or both. But what does milady say when her physician tries to state this fact in diplomatic language? "Oh, she invariably declares, "I do not eat much. Why, I am a very light eater."

It is immaterial whether she eats an ounce or 30 pounds of food a day. She is obviously eating more than her system can properly utilize, otherwise there would be no deposit of fat. Well, then, there is a habit. Intemperance in eating. In the old days of booze, one man could "carry" several times as much poison under his belt, for a time, as another, but it got him sooner or later. So does overeating.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Who Shall Reap the Wild Oats?

I am engaged to be married to a man who has confessed that he had syphilis four years ago, of which he claims to have been completely cured. Is there danger to me or to any children that might be born to us? (H. M.)

ANSWER—Don't marry the man until he has presented to your guardian or yourself a certificate from a physician in whose ability and honor you have confidence that the man has no communicable disease. If the disease has been arrested by treatment, the marriage may prove a happy one. If not, it may prove tragic. Appearance, personality, social position do not count. Syphilis and gonorrhea are race killers that respect nothing like that. I should grieve to see a daughter married to a man who had ever had such a disease, cured or not cured. There is no excuse for men contracting such diseases. The wife and children are too often compelled to reap the wild oats sowed by man whose education has been rather neglected, below the eyebrows.

A. J. M. Hair Tonic.

A. J. M. declares that the following has stopped the falling of hair and that he is now proud of his hair—though he doesn't say he was ever ashamed of it:

Coconut oil (not cocoa butter)	1 oz.
Cologne water	2 ounces
Tincture of nux vomica	2 drams
Tincture of cantharides	½ dram
Tincture of capsicum	½ dram

To be kept in a wide mouth jar, and vigorously massaged on the scalp, parting the hair and using the fingers until the hand tires, then some. Perhaps the oil and the massage does the business.

GOOD OYSTER PIES.

Shepherd's Pie of Beefsteak and Oysters—Cut into small pieces either fresh-cooked steak or cold broiled steak. Add an equal amount of oysters—a pint of oysters and a pound of steak is ample for six or eight persons. Put in a baking dish, and sprinkle with one teaspoon and one-half of salt, and one-quarter teaspoon of pepper.

Melt two tablespoons of butter in a sauce pan; add two tablespoons of flour, stir smooth, pour in two cups of water, or a mixture of water with gravy, soup stock, broth, etc., and cook until thickened.

Pour this over the meat and oysters, and cover all with a layer of mashed potatoes one to two inches deep. The pie may be cooked at once in the oven until hot through and the crust well browned, or it may be put aside for two or three hours until it is needed.

The oysters may be omitted and more of the steak used. Other meats left over from roasts, stews, etc., may be utilized in the same way.

Some suggested meat pies are: Rabbit pie, game pie, pigeon pie, fish pie, veal and ham pie, pork pie, chicken pie.

Ye Olde Englishe Pye—Make a pastry of two cups of flour, one teaspoon of salt and three teaspoons of baking powder.

Sift to mix and then rub in one-half cup shortening, and mix to a dough with one-half cup of ice cold water. Roll out one-quarter inch thick and then line a deep pie or layer cake pan with this pastry. Now look the oysters over for bits of shell and then wash twenty-five oysters, and turn into the pastry-lined pan, and add one-half cup of finely shredded celery, one-half onion finely minced, three tablespoons of finely minced parsley, one teaspoon of salt and one-half teaspoon of white pepper.

Mix with the oysters thoroughly and then dot the oysters with two tablespoons of butter. Place a top crust on and make several little holes for steam to escape.

RECIPES FOR A DAY.

Tomato-Gelatin Salad—Two tablespoons gelatin, soaked in half cup cold water and melted over hot water; one quart tomatoes, two teaspoons salt, bit of bay leaf, three peppercorns, one teaspoon sugar, one tablespoon onion chopped fine, four cloves, cooked together, strained and added to the gelatin; mold, cool and serve on lettuce leaf with boiled dressing.

Swiss Steak—One and one-half pounds round steak, one and one-half cups flour, pepper, one-half pint tomatoes, one sliced onion and water. Have steak cut two inches thick and pound into it the flour; put steak into pan with three tablespoons fat and brown on both sides; cover with water, tomatoes and onion; cover closely and simmer three hours; just before it is done add salt and pepper to taste; use the gravy that is in the pan, as it is delicious.

CLUB WOMEN TO AID IN ORGANIZATION OF PARENTS-TEACHERS

Cooperation in planning a Parent-Teachers organization was voted by the board of the City Federation of women at the regular monthly meeting held at Janesville Center yesterday. Each club president and leader of a group is to use every effort to notify all women of their respective organizations concerning the plans for the parent-teacher society, just as soon as a date for a meeting is fixed.

It is expected that Mrs. Edith Hoyt, chairman of child welfare work in the state, and Miss Martha Filley of the state health board, will be in the city about Feb. 18 to organize the work. Mothers who have children in the city schools are to be especially urged to attend this meeting.

A report of the dental inspection of school children and of the clinic was given by Mrs. J. G. Rexford, Mrs. Fred Sheldon and Miss Agnes Weber, who form the committee. The inspection is made by Dr. G. B. Thuerer assisted by Mrs. Margaret Woods two forenoons each week. The work is being done by Dr. Paul Segerson. Throats are also examined and many cases of adenoids and diseased tonsils are found as well as defective teeth. One child was found with seven bad abscesses on the teeth, she said. Cards are given to the children for them to take home to their parents showing their need of treatment, and if able to do so they are expected to go to their own dentist. But in case the people are unable to pay the work is done for them in the clinic. Follow-up work to see if the dentistry is done will also be tried out where ever possible, and help-ful cooperation of the teachers, in reminding the children of tooth brushing has resulted in marked improvement in some schools, she reported.

A busy month was reported in the Rest Room, with large numbers of women and girls using its privileges. A gift of $20 was made by the Saturday Evening Whist club and reported by Mrs. Fred Cepélle. This will be used in added equipment for the rest room. Another donation of $1 was received from a country woman.

WITH THE WOMEN OF TODAY

By EDITH MORIARTY

There is one field which women are entering in large numbers which is as much theirs as it is man's. It is aviation. That is such a new thing that women need not stand back and listen to men say that "it simply isn't done," as has been said in the past when women attempted anything new. After proving that they can handle an automobile as well as most men, it is to be expected that they will take just as readily to the airplane.

There are several notable instances already, like Ruth Law, Katherine Stinson and Mme. Jane Herveux. Another woman has joined the ranks of notable airwomen in Miss Volara Romanza Nelson. Miss Nelson of Boise, Idaho, is the first woman aviator to secure the much-coveted expert pilot's license certificate of the Aero Club of America. She knows aviation thoroughly having worked in an airplane factory during the war. She can do loops, tail spins and Immelman turns with the best of her male competitors. It is Miss Nelson's intention at present to make exhibition flights this coming summer in many sections of the country.

Miss Volara Romanza Nelson.

IS THIS TRUE?

"Of what use is it that Americans have so much money if they don't know how to live?

This sarcastic query was put by Mlle. Suzanne Boitard, a noted French writer, who is in New York, en route around the globe.

"Your country is what you call 'reeking with wealth,'" said Mlle. Boitard recently, "but you buy such ugly things with it.

"Ugliness seems not to offend you. "You have such rude noises that penetrate everywhere, and people push and scramble so in their rush to reach a place FIRST."

One of the fundamentals that we neglect in a boy's education, according to Mlle. Boitard, is our lack of stress on the importance of little attentions to women, and later in life we reap a harvest of barbarians, who crowd and push and refuse to give us their seats in the subway!

Mlle Boitard continued: "Your women buy such wonderful clothes, and furs and jewels, but they have no personality in their dressing. Always there is something wrong with the ensemble."

So THIS is what a French woman thinks about us.

In spite of these few things with which she takes serious issue, Mlle. Boitard is having a most interesting time in New York and is enthusiastic over the kindness and hospitality of Americans.

QUEBEC CONSIDERS SUFFRAGE

"Votes for Women" will be debated for the first time in the history of the Quebec legislature within the next few days. J. S. A. Ashley, member from Lachine, has just presented a motion that "in the opinion of this house the time has come to study the desirability of giving women the suffrage."

THREATEN SCHOOL STRIKE

The Chicago Teachers' Federation recently began a campaign for "health, decency and efficiency" wages for elementary teachers by delegating to its board of managers authority to call a strike.

Action followed decision of the board of education to fix the maximum salary of grade teachers at $2,000 a year. The teachers insist the minimum should be $1,200 with a maximum of $2,500.

"I don't know. I guess. Blackwell is in it. He knows every nook of the hills. The party left here not two hours since, looks like."

Curly put the newspaper in his pocket and led the way back to the store.

"The birds have flown, Dick. Made their getaway through the alley late this afternoon, probably just after it got dark." He turned to the woman. "Mrs. Wylie, murder is going to be done, I shouldn't wonder. And you're liable to be held guilty, of it unless you tell us all you know."

She began to weep, helplessly, but with a sort of stubbornness, too. Frightened she certainly was, but some greater fear held her silent as to the secret. "I don't know anything about it," she repeated over and over.

Maloney had an inspiration. He spoke in a low voice to Curly. "Let's take her to the hotel. Miss Kate will know how to get it out of her better than we can."

Mrs. Wylie went with them quietly enough. She was shaken with fears, but still resolute not to speak. They might send her to prison. She would tell them nothing—nothing at all. For some one who had made terror the habit of her life had put the fear of death into her soul.

CHAPTER V.

A Message in Cipher.

While Kate listened to what Curly had to tell her the dark eyes of the girl were fastened upon the trembling little woman standing near the door.

"Do you mean that she is going to let my father be killed rather than tell what she knows?" Her voice was sharply incredulous, touched with a horror scarcely realized.

"I—I don't know anything about it," the harassed woman iterated.

"What's the use of saying that when we know you do? And you'll not get out of it by sobbing. You've got to talk. You've got to tell—you're just got to," Kate insisted.

The little woman shrank before the energy of a passion so vital. No strength was in her to fight. But she could and did offer the passive resistance of obstinate silence.

Curly had drawn from his pocket the newspaper found in the cellar. His eyes had searched for the date line to use as cumulative evidence, but they had remained fastened to one story. Now he spoke imperatively.

"Come here, Miss Kate. I believe this is a message to us."

"A message?"

"From your father, perhaps."

"How could it be?"

"I found the paper in the cellar where he was. See how some of these words are scored. Done with a finger nail, looks like."

This was the paragraph upon which his gaze had fastened, and the words and letters were scored sharply as shown below, though in the case of single letters the mark ran through them instead of underneath, evidently that no mistake might be made as to which was meant:

J. P. Kelly of the ranger force reports over the telephone that by unexpected good luck he has succeeded in taking prisoner the notorious Jack Foster of Hermosilla and the Rincons notoriety and is now bringing him to Saguache where he will be locked up pending a disposition of his case. Kelly succeeded in surprising him while he was eating dinner at a Mexican road house just this side of the border.

"Do you make it out?" Mahoney asked, looking over their shoulders.

Curly took a pencil and an envelope from his pocket. On the latter he jotted down some words and handed the paper to his friend. This was what Maloney read:

"..... luck .....
..... prisoner .....Jack.....of He.....a.
R.....s now .....
Saguache ..... locked up pending a disposition of his case. .....succeeded in surprising him .....
....."

"Read that right ahead."

Dick did not quite get the idea, but Kate, tense with excitement, took the envelope and read aloud:

"Luck—prisoner—Jack of Hearts—now Saguache—locked up pending a disposition of his case—succeeded in surprising him." She looked up with shining eyes. "He's alive, somewhere. We'll save him now."

Curly spoke to her in a low voice. "You have a talk with Mrs. Wylie alone. We'll pull our freights. She'll tell you what she knows." He smiled in his gentle, winning way. "She's sure had a tough time of it if ever a woman had. I reckon a little kindness is what she needs. Let her see we're her friends and will stand by her—that we won't let her come to harm because she talks."

It was an hour before Kate joined them, and her eyes, though they were very bright, told tales of tears that had been shed.

"That poor woman! She has told me everything. Father has been down in that cellar for days under guard. They took him away tonight. She doesn't know where. It was she who sent the warnings to Sheriff Bolt. She wanted him to raid the place, but she dared not go to him."

"Because of Blackwell?"

"Yes. He came straight to her as soon as he was freed from the penitentiary. He had her completely terrorized. She gave him money, and he came for more—and more."

Curly nodded. He said nothing, but his strong jaws clamped.

"He was there that day," the girl continued. "She plucked up courage to refuse him what little she had left because she needed it for rent. He got hold of her arm and twisted it. Father heard her cry and came in. Blackwell was behind the door as it opened. He struck with a loaded cane and father fell unconscious. He raised it to strike again, but she clung to his arm and called for help. Before he could shake her off another man came in. He wrenched the club away."

"Fendrick?" breathed Curly.

"She doesn't know. But the first thing he did was to lock the outer door and take the key. They carried father down into the cellar. Before he came to himself his hands were tied behind his back."

"And then?"

"They watched him day and night. Fendrick himself did not go near the place—it it was Fendrick. Blackwell swore to kill Mrs. Wylie if she told. They held him there till tonight. She thinks they were trying to get father to sign some paper."

"The relinquishment, of course. That means the other man was Fendrick."

Kate nodded. "Yes."

Curly rose. The muscles stood out in his jaw as steel ropes.

"We'll rake the Rincons with a fine tooth comb. Don't you worry. I've already wired for Bucky O'Connor to come and help. We'll get your father out of the hands of those hell hounds. Won't we, Dick?"

Dinner Stories

It was a ramshackle little branch railway, but it was the best they had in the neighborhood and they had to put up with it.

A farmer was expecting a fowl-house to reach the village, and he got his dray and trundled off to the

—to him—hitherto unknown station to fetch it. Arrived there, he saw his purchase, loaded it onto his wagon, and started for home. On the way back he met the station-master.

"What the merry springtime have you got on that dray?" he asked.

"My fowl-house, of course," was the reply.

"Fowl-house, be bothered!" was the justly indignant response; "that's the station!"

"We arrived here after a long journey. The ordered goods have arrived in excellent condition. The messenger has brought us snow and hail in good order. The storm came one day later. I am sorry that the thunder bust up, and the lightning we had to patch up also. The ocean and the river I wish you to send us as early as possible, and do not forget to send us new clouds and a new sun. But the most important thing we want is a bay, as ours has been burned. Then we want a few yards of forest. Roll them all up and send immediately."

This letter was not written by the village idiot, but by the manager of a traveling theatrical company which had lost some of its scenery.

"Are you a lawyer?" asked the wrathy visitor.

"I am, sir. What can I do for you?"

"I'm in the grocery business. A woman called me a profiteer. Is that word actionable?"

"It certainly is—if she can prove it."

TELL YOUR WIFE CORNS LIFT OFF

Doesn't hurt a bit to lift corns or calluses off with fingers

Not a twinge of pain or soreness before applying, or afterwards. This may sound like a dream to corn-pestered men and women who have been cutting, filing and wearing torturous plasters. Yes! Corns lift out and calluses peel off as if by magic, says this Cincinnati authority.

A quarter ounce of freezone costs but a few cents at any drug store. Apply a few drops directly upon your tender corn or callus, and instantly the soreness disappears; then shortly the corn or callus will be so loose that it lifts off.

Freezone dries instantly. It doesn't eat out the corn or callus, but just shrivels it up so it lifts away without even irritating the surrounding skin. Women should keep it on the dresser and never let a corn or callus ache twice. Advertisement.

BILLY WHISKERS

By Frances Trego Montgomery

When the patrol arrived at the police station Billy was made to jump out and was led through the station into the back yard, and here he was turned loose. He had been there about half an hour, when he heard a terrible stamping of horses' feet and many bells ringing in the building on the other side of the fence.

Wondering what the racket could be about, he climbed on top of a pile of boxes that were next to the fence and looked into the yard beyond. He found that the building was used as a fire engine station, and that the racket he had heard was caused by the horses taking their places at the engine ready to start to a fire.

Through two large doors that opened into the yard Billy could see what was going on inside. And when he saw the men jump to their places on the engine and the driver whip up his horses, he became so excited he could stand it no longer and he determined to go with them to the fire. With a spring he was over the fence and following after the engine at a stiff run.

It was a good thing Billy had a strong pair of lungs or he would never have been able to keep up with the fast speed of the fire engine horses, but he did and arrived at the fire in good shape.

The fire was found to be in a three-story frame house, and when they got there the flames were already coming out of the upper windows; but the strangest thing about the fire was that the inhabitants of the house, if there were any, seemed to be in utter oblivion that their house was on fire for not a person was in sight about the place and all the doors and windows were securely locked.

Two men ran up the steps with axes, while two followed dragging the hose after them. The men with the axes had given one knock to the door when Billy saw what they were up to, and as he had often used his head as a batering-ram, he ran up the steps, and before the men knew he was there, he gave the door a mighty butt with his head which made it crash in and the men and goat fell through the opening.

This tickled the crowd who had gathered to see the fire and they called out: "Bravo for the goat!"

Billy followed the firemen upstairs but when he got there the smoke was so thick he could see nothing, and it made his eyes smart besides choking him dreadfully, so he decided to go out again. He turned to find the head of the stairs he had come up, but instead of discovering them he ran into the wall and the more he tried to find his way out the more confused he became. He fell over something and when he regained his feet, after having nearly gone head over heels into a box, as he thought, but which was a baby's cradle, he felt something heavy hanging to his horns. At the same time he heard a baby cry.

"Poor little thing," thought Billy, "everyone has gone out of the house and left the baby asleep and now it is going to be burned to death. Wish I knew where it was; it sounds near but I can't see for this smoke." Just then a little bare foot slipped down over Billy's eyes and then he knew the heavy thing hanging to his horns was the baby.

As soon as he found this out, he tried harder than ever to find the stairs and present he found them, and with the baby's clothes still twisted around his horns he ran down and out into the street, just in time to meet the baby's nurse coming from the drug store around the corner. She was wild with joy when she saw the baby and rushed up to Billy to unfasten the baby's clothes from his horns. The child was unhurt, and a crowd soon gathered around Billy to pet and praise him for saving the baby's life.

(Tomorrow Billy has a laugh at the policemen's expense.)

Here Is a Sensible Treatment That Gets Prompt Results.

Eczema and similar skin troubles come from a disordered, impure condition of the blood, and they can only be cured by giving the blood a thorough cleansing, and removing from it all traces of impurity.

This is why S. S. S. has been used so successfully in hundreds of cases of Eczema and other skin eruptions. This wonderful remedy is without an equal as a blood purifier, being probably the oldest blood medicine on the market. It has been sold by druggists for fifty years. Get a bottle today and begin treatment that will get results.

You are invited to write to-day for complete and full advice as to the treatment of your own case. Address, Chief Medical Adviser, Swift Specific Co., Dept. 52, Atlanta, Ga.

METHODISTS PROTEST WOMEN'S SMOKING

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Feb. 6.—Increased use of tobacco among women during 1919 was "appalling," according to the board of temperance, prohibition, and morals of the Methodist church. In a statement today the board made "an earnest appeal to women to refrain from the use of tobacco in the name of the country's welfare."

"No nation can maintain the vigor which has been characteristic of the American people after its women begin the use of cigarettes," the statement said. "The sedentary life of women tends to an excess in the use of tobacco and produces more serious results than is caused by its use among men. The effect of tobacco on women is similar to its effects on immature youths."

John O'Donnell Gains 20 Pounds

"I have not only gained twenty pounds in weight since I started taking Tanlac, but I doubt if I would be here today if it hadn't been for what Tanlac has done for me," said John O'Donnell, 838 Warren avenue, Milwaukee, Wis., recently.

"Yes, sir, I owe my present good health and ability to work every day to the remarkable benefits I have received from Tanlac," he continued, "for this is the first winter in seven years I have not had to quit work on account of the wretched condition of my health. When I started taking Tanlac my appetite was so poor I had to just force down every mouthful and the little I did manage to eat did not seem to do me any good, so I lost weight until I was so weak I could hardly drag one foot after the other. After every meal I would bloat up with gas, have sharp shooting pains in my chest and hot, sour water would come up in my mouth. Often I had such awful dizzy spells I would have to hold on to something to keep from falling. I also suffered from rheumatism in my legs and shoulders, and my legs would get so stiff at times I could scarcely walk and just had to drag myself about, and they would some times become numb and the muscles just seemed to draw up in knots. My shoulders at times troubled me so, I couldn't raise my hands above my head. I had such awful pains in my back that when I stooped over I felt like it was coming in two and it was all I could do to straighten up again. I was extremely nervous and was so restless I would just roll from one side of the bed to the other for hours and would get up in the morning feeling worse than when I went to bed.

"My wife was always after me to try Tanlac, so finally I had her get me a bottle and I started taking it. Well, sir, I began to get better right off and I continued taking it until now I feel just like a new man. I have a good appetite and everything I eat agrees with me, the rheumatism has left me entirely, I sleep well at night and never become dizzy any more. In fact, I am completely rid of all my troubles and never miss a day from work. I am glad to say a good word for Tanlac and know it will help any one who takes it."

Tanlac is sold in Janesville by all leading druggists. Advertisement

British Propose Air Route From Europe to S. America

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London (By Mail).—British government agents have proposed an air route between Europe and South America via Paris, Madrid, Rabat, in Morocco; Bathurst, on the west coast of Africa, and thence by a 1,450-mile ocean route to Pernambuco. The ocean passage is comparatively short.

Cross Plains—While taking a load of gravel from a pit located on the Charles Wahl farm, two miles northeast of Cross Plains, a workman struck something he could not dislodge with his shovel. Taking a bar, he brought up a gun. This firearm is now in possession of Edward Herling, Cross Plains. The gun was found about 10 feet below the surface. It is a doubled-barreled muzzle loader, the stock having rotted off or possibly may have been blown off at the time it killed its owner, as many people believe may have happened. But how came this gun to be covered by so many feet of gravel is an unanswered question, as well as who was the owner, for his name, "Gottfried Jacobs, Mannheim on the Rhine," can be read plainly. The piece is beautifully engraved on the barrels and inlaid with silver, as also are two Bavarian eagles on each side of the engraved name. Not even the oldest settler in this region knew this man or remembers hearing his name.

Black River Falls—John Stanton of this city and Dora Hersch, Superior, heirs of Peter J. Stanton, New York city, have been notified that they have come in for a legacy of $147,000 in money and 10 lots in the city of Chicago bringing a monthly rental of $400. The foundation for this fortune reads like a romance. Over 60 years ago the father of John Stanton deeded to his brother certain property with the proviso that should the brother die without heir, the property should descend to his heirs. One daughter was born of the union of Peter Stanton, she dying some 30 years ago, the wife dying some years later, which left no direct heir, and under the terms of the deed the property went to the above heirs.

WHO'S WHO in the Day's News

FRANK A. MUNSEY.

F.A.MUNSEY

Frank A. Munsey, who recently purchased the New York Herald, and now has merged it with his other great morning newspaper in New York—the Sun—is known among the members of his profession as a publishing genius.

He began life as a telegraph operator; went to New York as a youth and started the Golden Argosy, a boys' magazine, to which he was a large contributor. He had no capital, no backing, but the venture prospered and continues today as the Argosy.

Later on he established Munsey's Magazine, for a long time one of the leading 10-cent American magazines, and at the present time he owns the Railroad Man's Magazine and the All Story Monthly.

Munsey's first adventure in the newspaper field was when he bought the Baltimore News, but abandoned it in a few months after vainly trying to make it pay. Shortly afterward the paper went out of existence. Previously he had owned the New York Star, whose name he changed to the Continent, and this he sold as a going concern. Its name was changed to the Advertiser and later it was merged with the New York American.

For a number of years Mr. Munsey owned the Washington Times, the paper whose sale to Arthur Brisbane of the Hearst papers, financed by a number of German-American brewers, was the subject of a congressional investigation in the course of the war.

Mr. Munsey is 66. He was born in Mercer, Me., August 21, 1854.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

3—Fleece-lined—warm and dry

NO more dirty, mud-clogged overshoes! Here's something new—an overshoe that you can clean instantly. Dash a pail of water over it—or hold it right under a faucet—and every trace of dirt washes quickly off its smooth rubber surface.

For dozens of odd jobs around the place, you want an overshoe that you can slip on and off in a hurry. Here it is—buckle it on in a second—unbuckle it and push it off with your toe when you're through.

Ever work on a job all day long with wet, cold feet? Then you'll be glad of the soft, fleecy lining in this new overshoe that keeps your feet always warm and comfortable. Dry, too—it's absolutely watertight.

Think of having an overshoe as warm and convenient as an arctic—as watertight and easily cleaned as a rubber boot! That's the new U. S. Walrus—don't forget that name! In every way, it's the farmers' ideal overshoe.

Ask your dealer today to show you the new U. S. Walrus. Note the smooth, all-rubber surface—the heavy reinforcements at all points of strain. After you've worn a pair of U. S. Walrus for a day or two, you'll realize why they're fast becoming so popular with farmers everywhere.

Other "U.S." models—all built for the hardest wear

Whether you prefer a boot or a bootee for the wet season, a "rubber" for general use, or a cloth-top arctic—you can find in U. S. rubber footwear exactly what you need. Tough, heavy soles—special reinforcements at toe and heel—and always the highest quality rubber—these points are winning U. S. rubber footwear thousands of new friends every year.

Ask for U. S. Rubber footwear—it means solid wear and long service for your money.

"U.S." Arctics—Made of snow-tight cashmerette, warm and comfortable. Reinforced where the wear is hardest. In one, two, four, and six buckles, all weights and sizes.

"U.S." Boots—Made in all sizes and styles—Short, Storm King, Sporting, and Hip. In red, black, and white.

CARDS HAVE SHARP CONTEST TOMORROW

Carrying three utility men along with them, the Racine City team will be here tomorrow night to face the Lakota Cardinals on the armory basketball court. Final arrangements for the game were completed today.

While little is known of the individual starring records of the men on the visiting five, their fame as a group precedes them. As champions of the 88th division, A. E. F., they form a formidable aggregation on paper. Basketball took an important place in the sporting life of that outfit. A number of rapid, hard-fighting teams tried for the high-mark.

Here's the lineup they will bring along: Zahn, Brehm, and Zandl, forwards; Peterson and Fitzpatrick, centers; Manchester, Lahr and Maxted, guards.

The Cards will have their usual lineup ready to take the floor. Negotiations for Hasbrouck are continuing. It is hoped that he will agree in time to be here tomorrow night.

The game starts at 9 o'clock.

CITY LEAGUE MARKS BROKEN BY SAMSON

These marks were made rolling against the Rails, who lost three. The News took two from the Hub, with Hjorth of the opposition rolling high at 232.

As You Were

By BUCK.
Of the Stars and Stripes A. E. F.

THE ROSE AND THE THORN

We know from out the mire-land,
The bogs and brakes of Ireland,
The wicked snakes were chased by good St. Patrick,
For, encamped upon their trail, he
Walloped them with his shellnly,
And he's many times and often been praised for that trick.

Now a thousand-fold worse vermin
Were allowed to stalk and squirm in
The country of the free-lunch, law and order,
Till our own St. Cola-Bevo,
With a hip-hooray and heave-ho,
Chased 'em all across the ocean or the border.

Purple elephants and demons,
Who provoke delirium tremens
And the awful tigeraffus paradoxus,
Each was tracked until it snorted,
Caught red-handed and deported,
So the morning-after zoo no longer
shocks us.

Now let us look to Erin
And inquire how they are farin'—
If they miss their snakes or feel they do not need 'em,
And the echo answers, "Sure
The reptiles we'd endure,
If you'd have a heart and give us back our freedom!"

Stevens Point—A basketball game which will have an important bearing on the northern divisional championship of Wisconsin normals, will be staged here Friday night, when River Falls and Stevens Point meet. Both are undefeated and are considered the two strongest teams in the conference. Each has won a victory from Eau Claire normal. The Point has also defeated Superior normal.

Jack Dillon.

By NORMAN E. BROWN

The general boom in boxing since the end of the war and the prospects of boxing becoming legalized in New York is bringing a big bunch of the old boys back into the game with rosy visions of collecting a few more shekels before they die entirely, pugilistically speaking.

And one of the most popular of the old birds who plans a comeback in this general movement is Jack Dillon. Dillon isn't so old in years, being only 39 now, but he was a vet in the game when he found that apparently his legs had failed him. They became stiff and failed to stand the strain of even short no-decision bouts. He believes, however, that the layoff may have restored the flexibility and strength in his pins.

Pete Herman.

By NORMAN E. BROWN

Comes before the court one Pete Herman, who being duly sworn, deposeth and saith that he would like to take a crack at Johnny Kilbane and the featherweight crown Jonathan has worn these many years.

The fact that Pete, baniam champion, wants to step into a class several pounds heavier, shows he's ambitious, to say the least. The main stickler to the chances of the match being pulled off is that Pete says he'll insist on John making 122 pounds for the bout. This would give Pete an advantage, as Johnny would have to train to the pink while Peter could go in heavy.

Herman was a bootblack before he broke into the professional boxing game. He is 24 years old now and hails from New Orleans. He started fighting eight years ago and won the bantamweight title Jan. 2, 1917, by outpointing Kid Williams in a twenty-round contest in Herman's home town. The decision of Billy Rocap, referee, was disputed by some critics, but Herman's right to the crown was generally conceded.

DEMPSEY MAY NOT APPEAR AT HEARING

New York Feb 6.—Jack Dempsey probably will not be present when the army, navy and civilian board of boxing control opens its court to review the charges of slackerism against him here.

Failure of the champion or his manager to reply to a wire notifying them of the hearing has been interpreted by the club officials as meaning that he will carry out his promise to present his case in affidavits, instead of appearing in person. The club also announced on Thursday that it would retain counsel to represent Dempsey at the trial if he is unable to be there himself.

"Our purpose in having a legal representative for Dempsey is to make it strong that we are acting impartially and that he will be given a fair deal," Adam Empie, secretary of the board, said Thursday afternoon.

The Daily Novelette

Reminiscences.

Ten members of the Necks to Nature Club were discussing the recent slump in stocks. Evidently they didn't notice the entrance of another of their number.

It was Colonel Harta Beetem.

"Speaking of bad falls," interrupted the Colonel. Several members looked toward the door—those nearest getting out first. But two remained.

"By—speaking of bad falls puts me in mind of the expedition I took to the North Pole and the bad fall I got there.

"It was in the eighties and I was enjoying retirement, doncha know, on me farm at Winnewinki when I got a telegram from the Gov'ment, telling me to report immediately at Washington. When I got theah, I was ordered to rig a ship with a crew and provisions within twenty-four hours; I did it in twenty-three, egad. Then I was ordered to go forth in search of the North Pole.

"Well, sah! we reached the Pole after many adventures and some mishaps, safely and then I got me fall.

"I was looking at the Pole, admiring its height, when I thought how much more to me credit it would be, so to speak, if I—climbed it. I did, after much difficulty, and then I slid and fell. It was the most dreadful sensation I ever experienced, bah Jove. I really think I thought of every mean thing I evah did."

"You must have fallen a great distance, Colonel," put in one of the members. The Colonel didn't hear.

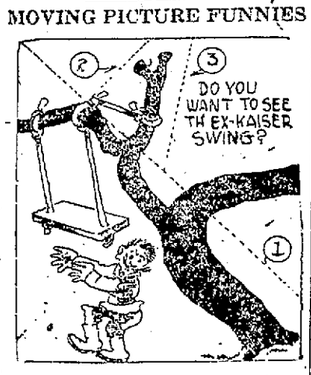

"Why, gentlemen, it was so cold up there, and the snow and ice were so slippery, that once, egad, when I had to walk two miles to provision the ship, I slipped back two steps for every one I took forward, doncha know."

"Hum-rum! How did you ever get there then, Colonel?"

"I just started to go back to the ship again! Haw!"

The silence becoming oppressive, Colonel Harta Beetem picked up his favorite book, "Baron Munchmausen," and read for five minutes uninterruptedly.

1,000,000 PEOPLE GLOOMY WITHOUT THEIR NEWSPAPERS

Winnipeg, Canada. — After one week in which more than 1,000,000 persons in Winnipeg and the provinces of Manitoba and Saskatchewan have been without newspapers, it is possible to take stock of the results of the news print famine. It has been the gloomiest week within their remembrance, not even excepting the early days of the war.

The papers were forced to suspend publication, the result of the clash with Ft. France's news print manufacturers, ending in the latter's refusal to ship paper here. The first effect was to deprive the citizens of authentic news. As the result, the wildest rumors have been current. Newspaper offices have made an effort to combat these rumors by posting bulletins in front of their offices, but these are wholly inadequate.

There has been a tremendous decrease in business everywhere. The mercantile houses, usually crowded by bargain hunters at this time of year, are suffering great losses. "Business in my department store has fallen off $3,000 a day," said the head of one concern. "This holds good in other businesses. The street cars are virtually empty, moving picture shows are closed, as they cannot advertise, and most of the people remain at home."

HAS TO HAVE NOSE TO PLEASE WOMEN

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Paris, (By Mail)—The "Society of the Men with the Copper Masks" has just held its first annual convention at the Val de Grace Military hospital, Paris. The society consists of French soldiers, suffering from facial wounds, who have been provided with a set of new features by the American Red Cross.

The most successful address was made by a woman's hair-dresser who lost his nose through a shell explosion. As he told his comrades in a speech: "Without my nose my job was gone, for how could a nose-less coiffeur hope to please women customers? Already melancholy had marked me for his own, when the mask expert took my case in hand, and so successfully, that I am now doing a rushing business in my old trade."

These American "portrait masks", which are the only ones in France, are made of light weight copper plate, enamelled in flesh tints. They conceal facial scars and hide the absence of missing features. They are an adaption of the masks invented by Captain Derwent Wood of the British Army. The work owes its origin to Mrs. Maynard Ladd, of Boston, who devised the American mask, and to Miss Marie Brent, of Columbus, O., who took charge of the "portrait mask studio. Miss Brent recently married Despreaux, director of one of the most important libraries in Paris.

PRINTLESS PRINTING

Kansas City.—Philip Young, a Chinese student at the Kansas State Agricultural College, at Manhattan, says the Literary Digest, was not first in conceiving that a magazine could be printed without the aid of printers. He claims to be the first person to put the idea into practice.

Young was a Y. M. C. A. man with the Chinese coolies in France and wanted to publish a paper for them, but he found there was not a font of Chinese type to be found. He wrote his matter in long hand—or whatever the Chinese call it—and then had each page photographed. From a print of the photographic negative an electrotype was made, and from this the printed page.

This is the principle that was later used by the Literary Digest and other New York publications during the recent strike.

SEALS KILLING FISH

London, Eng.—Inspector M. Donison, reporting to the Eastern Sea Fisheries committee at King's Lynn, stated that seals were increasing in the Wash, and they were very destructive to fish. The sandbanks were convenient breeding places, and the seals, with their young, resembled herds of sheep. The local government board has stopped payments to fishermen for destruction of the seal.

U. S. FEEDS CHILDREN

New York.—Food for more than 1,000 children is now being supplied daily in the Tatabanya mining district of Hungary by the mission working under the direction of the American Relief Committee for Hungarian Sufferers, according to a report made by Major Foster, of the British army to the headquarters of the committee here.

Girls! Your hair needs a little "Danderine"—that's all! When it becomes lifeless, thin or loses its lustre; when ugly dandruff appears, or your hair falls out, a 35-cent bottle of delightful, dependable "Danderine", from any store, will save your hair, also double it's beauty. You can have nice, thick hair, too.

Concerning Epidemics

In Epidemics the germ fastens most readily on fruitful soil—a system that is in poor condition.

Stoppage of food waste, and the resulting decay, generates poisons which are absorbed by the blood, lowering its power of resistance to withstand the attack of outside germs such as influenza.

In plain terms, constipation encourages Epidemics.

If you keep your intestinal passage clear and functioning regularly to get rid of this waste, your system will be kept in good condition to successfully cope with disease germs to which you may be exposed.

That is what the Nujol Treatment does—without straining, and without drawing on the vitality of other parts of the body, as do other forms of treatment.

In plain terms, Nujol discourages constipation and its dangerous consequences.

Keep your body clean inside with the Nujol Treatment. It is the best possible Sickness Prevention.

Nujol is sold by all druggists in bottles bearing the Nujol Trade Mark. Beware of products represented to be "the same as Nujol." You may suffer from substitutes.

Address Nujol Laboratories, Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey), 50 Broadway, New York, for valuable health booklet, free, "Thirty Feet of Danger."

Your Druggist Is A Community Co-operator

WORKING shoulder to shoulder with you for the betterment of the community in which you and he have a common interest, is your local druggist.

He shares your burdens and your joys and contributes his full share towards those things that add to the social and economic welfare of his neighbors.

Very often he is a leading factor in securing local improvements in streets, roads and other public utilities.

For the convenience of the people in his vicinity he carries hundreds ofttimes thousands of drug items—some of which he must buy far in advance of anticipated demands so that he may have them when his customers need them.

He is, in fact, your agent, because when he buys, he must of necessity select only those items which he knows will be pleasing to you. Therefore, your druggist is worthy of your fullest support! Remember he sells other things besides drugs—he must, in order to continue to give you the kind of service you have always received from him.

So the next time you need cigars, razor blades, brushes, toilet articles, rubber goods or any item you expect to find in an up-to-date drug store—even some you might not expect to find there—call on your local druggist.

W. C. T. U. HONORS FRANCES WILLARD

The life of Frances Willard, famous temperance worker, a native of this city, was the subject for discussion at the monthly meeting of the W. C. T. U. held yesterday afternoon in the Baptist church. Miss Caroline Palmer had charge of the program.

Mrs. E. P. Hocking led the devotional service, having members sing the various hymns and reading psalms of Frances Willard. The devotional closed with a prayer for continuance of the work for which the W. C. T. U. stands.

Mrs. C. E. Ewing told of the community service which the organization might do in assisting the boys o fthe city under the leadership of A. C. Preston, boys' work secretary at the "Y." She also gave a sketch of Frances Willard's life.

Mrs. Martha Gray, a girlhood friend of the noted worker, told many interesting incidents of their childhood days in the old school house on the river road. Mrs. I. Filbrick told of the Frances Willard memorial fund. Mrs. C. Smith gave an account of a Christmas spent at Ellis island.

Tributes to Frances Willard were read by the members. As formerly, the organization will send $2 to the Willard fun. The meeting was closed with the reading of "The Triumphant Son." Miss Lucy Granger acted as hostess, serving refreshments at the conclusion of the meeting.

NEW DIVORCE RECORD

New York.—All records were broken in the city during 1919 in the number of divorce suits actually tried in the courts. A new high mark was set as the old year drew to a close when after official court it became known that 1,335 separate actions had been litigated in New York county during the year. This is an increase of more than 50 percent. over the number of divorce actions tried during 1918, when 886 cases were decided.

The year 1918 showed a slight falling off from the figures reached at the close of 1917, when 949 divorce actions were tried in New York county alone. The 1919 record showed that there were 386 more divorce suits than in 1917, or 31 percent more even than the high mark of divorces before the war.

THE LUCKY CLOVER

London, Eng.—Quick proof the saying that four-leaved clover brings luck to a person who finds it unawares was forthcoming in the case of Mrs. A. Gagley, Beaconsfield, Bucks. Walking down her garden to gather some herbs, she found a sprig of four-leaved clover by the side of the path. Later, she was walking along the London road when she picked up a 10 shilling treasury note.

The Fiftieth Anniversary

Just fifty years ago this winter Dr. Pierce gave to the world his famous "Favorite Prescription" for the distressing weaknesses and complaints of women. For many years he had been in the active practice of medicine and his specialty was the diseases of women. Later he desired to give this to the public, and he received a trade-mark protection from the United States patent office for this medicine which is an herbal, "temperance" prescription with all the ingredients printed on the bottle wrapper. In his every day practice in the early days he also used a tonic and alterative for the blood, which was so universally beneficial that he determined to place this medicine in the drug stores of the United States, where it could be readily procured by the public. This he called his "Golden Medical Discovery," which he had prescribed many years for the stomach, liver and blood. Both these medicines met with instant success, and during the past half century have sold in greater quantities than any other proprietary medicines. Neither of Dr. Pierce's medicines contains alcohol and both are herbal extracts of native medicinal plants. For the past fifty years forty-eight million bottles have been used by the American public, and they are today the standard tonics for men and women. They are now put up in tablet as well as liquid form, and sold by every druggist in the land. A trial package can be obtained by sending 10 cents to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y. Write Dr. Pierce's if you want free confidential medical advice, or a free booklet on any chronic disease.

OUT FOR A SPIN IN BICYCLE AIRPLANE: FRENCH AVIATOR PEDALS WAY IN THE AIR

Aviator De Poulain pedaling his plane through the air.

Recent pictures of Aviator De Poulain, French inventor, showed him and his partly completed device for driving a small plane through the air by pedaling, as one would pedal a bicycle. This photo shows the bicycle plane, completed, being given a trial spin by the inventor. The propeller of the machine is connected to the pedals. The machine takes off as soon as the rider attains sufficient speed in pedaling. So far he has not flown any great distance.

Whitewater News

[By Gazette Correspondent.]

Whitewater, Feb. 6.—Sidney Creighton, a sophomore in the Commercial High school, goes today to San Diego, Calif., to live with his cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Porter, of that city.

Friends here have received news of the death in Chicago of G. S. Waterman. He was a real estate agent and for several years had an office in this city.

Miss Margaret Walsh is employed in the First National bank.

Mrs. H. B. Edwards, Eagle, visited her sister-in-law, Mrs. J. G. Kestol, yesterday.

Mrs. Perry Lewis entertained the Royal Neighbors at her home on Main street yesterday afternoon.

George Ewin has a hen that has created much attention by making a record as an egg producer. This hen layed 340 eggs in a year. Considering the fact that eggs have been at famine prices all the year, some of the time as high as 80 cents a dozen, it might be easy to figure some profits could one own a race of hens so prolific in egg production as this one.

Fred Messerschmidt has sold the Whitewater hotel to B. J. Anderson, Green Bay.

George Brockway, who now has a position with the Samson company in Janesville, was here on business one day this week. He has purchased a home in Janesville and will make his home there.

Arrival of French in Silesia Starts Disturbance

[By Associated Press.]

Berlin, Feb. 6.—Disturbances followed the arrival of French troops at Gleiwitz, Silesia, 24 miles northeast of Ratibor, on Wednesday. An excited crowd attacked several French officers with sticks and stones and some of the officers were injured.

Earlier in the day an anti-French demonstration took place in the streets of Gleiwitz and a crowd attacked a deputation of Poles awaiting the arrival of French troops at the railway station. The Poles were badly beaten, their flags were destroyed and flowers which they intended to give the French troops were torn to pieces by the mob.

[By Associated Press.]

MINT MAKES RECORD

Philadelphia—In a valiant effort to meet the abnormal demand for "small change," the Philadelphia mint established a new high-water mark in 1919, having turned out the enormous total of 500,915,000 pieces for domestic use and 30,629,105 for foreign account. The 1918 output was 357,845,006 of domestic and 28,450,000 of foreign. The value of the 1918 output was $14,080,391.04, while that of 1919 was $13,849,610, the tremendous demand for pennies being responsible for the decrease in value in 1919.

350,000 LIVES SAVED

Washington, D. C.—Surgeon-General Rupert Blue's New Year's greeting to the American people is the announcement that in the last 20 years it has been possible to reduce the general death rate in this country from 17.6 to 14.2 per 1,000. Had the conditions of 20 years ago prevailed during the year just passed, Surgeon-General Blue says, 350,000 more persons would have died than actually did die.

DOUBT IF RUSSIAN TRADE IS PRACTICAL

[By Associated Press.]

Paris, Feb. 6.—Doubt as to the practical working of the plan for the partial resumption of trade with Russia through the co-operative societies developed at today's session of the council of ambassadors.

The discussion came up through an examination of the possibility of the bolshevik finding an outlet from Russia through Reval under the partial raising of the blockade. During this discussion it was declared that the soviet government after saying it would consent to the proposed restricted trading with the outside world through these co-operative societies, had shown a disposition to tie up the societies with official administration in such a way as to make even partial trading impossible.

Attention of the council was called by Ambassador Wallace to the fact that the representatives of the United States on the export commissions to supervise the distribution of railway rolling stock on the lines running from Germany into territories detached from the empire had been designated under Artle 371 of the peace treatey to preside over such commissions. The absence of American representation on the commissions required the taking of some action in this respect, he pointed out.

The council decided that provisional president should be chosen.

GRAIN

Chicago Review.

Chicago, Feb. 6.—Corn developed a little strength today, helped by firmness in the hog market and by upturns in foreign exchange. Advances, however, led to an increase of offerings and brought out something of a reaction. Demand was chiefly from shorts. Opening quotations, which ranged from ⅛@¼c decline to ¼c gain, with May $1.32¾@1.32¾, and July $1.27¾@1.28¼, were followed by slight advances all around and then by a moderate sag.

Oats duplicated the exchange in corn, after opening ¼@⅝c higher, including May at 78¾@79¼c, the market descended to below yesterday's finish.

Commission house buying gave strength to lard.

Later the market showed pronounced weakness as a result of heavy selling of oats here by Winnipeg interests. The close was nervous at the same as yesterday's finish to 1¼c lower, with May $1.30⅝@1.30⅞ and July $1.27⅞@1.27½.

Pleasant Fields Of Holy Writ

Golden Text: The prayer of faith shall save him that is sick and the Lord shall raise him up. James V 15.

PETER AT LYDDA AND JOPPA

Christianity in the age of the apostles and through them as instruments deliberately undertook to make men more comfortable in their bodies as well as in their souls. It rebuked disease and alleviated pain. St. Peter in his tireless itinerancy in which he "passed through all quarters" was an example of this. At Lydda he said to palsied Æneas "Jesus Christ maketh thee whole." Some one calls Æneas a characterless man, probably because nothing is related of him except that he had kept his bed for eight years. But one other very important thing about him can be inferred, namely that he had faith to respond to the apostle's command and did rise immediately. * * * Now the picture of the palsied man dissolves and in place of it comes on the gospel screen the face and form of the world's first Christian deaconess, who was "full of good works and almsdeeds which she did." Her eye was that of the gazelle as her name signifies. Not only benignant in pity for the poor, but alert to detect at once their need and the means of relieving it. * * * It is not by any accident that these two scenes are associated. It is St. Luke's method. It is his way of showing the objective life of the church. It was not only to be good subjectively but to do good objectively. Æneas' quivering and shivering body is put to the first rest and ease it has had in years. On the other hand Dorcas is the church incarnate and objectively busy in feeding the hungry and clothing the naked. Dorcas embroidered her name all unconsciously into the benevolence of the world. * * * Had Dorcas not died prematurely we would never have heard of her. She might have continued the Madonna of the alley in Joppa, but her name would not have gone into the New Testament and become the favorite appelation of woman's benevolent societies throughout the world. It has been quaintly said that tears were her epetaph and coats her eulogium. * * * The restoration of Dorcas to life is one of those priceless evidences of the immortality of the human spirit for which the heart of humanity is indescribably grateful and on which it will never vellnquish its hold. The spirit of Dorcas was not just breathed out and diffused in the atmosphere. It survived the incident of death. Conscious and sentient it awaited the will of the Lord of all spirits. When he spoke the word it reentered the inanimate body. She did not cease to live whom they called dead. In this incident St. Peter was the mere instrument of the Lord of spirits. And the aim and effect of the miracle are its justification.

THE TEACHER'S LANTERN

If death ends all: if there is no spirit to survive it: if with Moleschott we are to say, "Thought is a movement of matter," and with Karl Vogt, "Thought stands in the same relation to the brain as gall to the liver, or urine to the bladder," then untimely death is inexplicable: the obliteration of the thinking faculty when it is at its best is a travesty upon the Creator. But if there be a future life, then into it the spirit enters with all the advantage of its discipline and experience in the present life, and under conditions more favorable continues its activities. The untimely departure of such a one stimulates to imitation. The gap is filled. So while heaven gains, earth does not lose. * * James Moore Hickson the English layman who has lately visited America believes that in a measure the healing and comforting power of religion is the privilege and duty of the church of today. In a thoughtful and conservative way he believes himself to be a "medium of Christ for healing" and lays hands on the sick praying with them and comforting them. He does not encourage expectation of immediate and miraculous cure. He advises the continuance of physician's prescriptions and otherwise cooperates with the profession. His ministry is at least worthy of thoughtful investigation. * * * The secret of recovery without remedial means may be that the strengthened will has regained its normal ascendency over the nervous system in a natural way. One strong will is known to infuse itself in a weaker one, as that of a parent's in the child's. This seems to be the psycological basis of so-called cures. * * * A sick woman when asked if she believed in healing by faith or medicine answered naively, "I believe in healing by faith medicine." It would be wicked in extreme cases to use medicine without prayer, folly to pray without giving the medicine. As well might one pray, "Give us our daily bread," and then sit down in idleness to wait for it. If Christianity was intended as a panacea for physical disease, it is a conspicuous failure. But preachers and elders were never intended to supplant physicians and pharmacists, nor the gospel the materia medica. This brings us to the objective life of the Apostolic Church. That Church sought not only to be good, but to do good. It sought to irradiate the dark places of want and suffering with practical beneficence. Peter healing palsied Æneas, and Dorcas with her good works and alms-deeds—coats and garments—well represent the Church in her aggressive mission of mercy and helpfulness. Had Dorcas remained unknown and unmentioned in the Gospel record her life would have been just as efficient, her benevolence just as salutary. Her fame added nothing to her merit. The few who become illustrious only serve to remind of the multitude who remain unknown. It is by this rank and file that the bulk of the world's work is done, yet they have no place in stordid page,

no rest in marble shrine
Schiller's immortal colloquy should cheer these obscure toilers,
"What shall I do to be forever known?"
"Thy duty ever!"
"This did full many who sleep unknown!"
"O never! Never!
Think'st thou perchance that they remain unknown
Whom thou know'st not?
By angels trumps in heaven their praise is blown!
Divine their lot!"

Feb. 8. Topic—A Worth-While Life. Ps. 37: 18-40. (Decision Day.) What is your ideal of a worth-while life?

How can broken life be restored?

How can we find Christ's aid to make life worth while?

Motto: A life spent worthily should be measured by a nobler line—by deeds not years. Sheridan. Duenna IV 1.

It is living vs existing. Existing is just being an animal, seeking sustenance and pleasure for the body. Living on the other hand recognizes the dignity and seriousness of the whole period between birth and death, for the use made of the faculties with which he is endowed and the opportunities given for their use and development. The middle-age idea however that the body is an enemy to be subdued is now discarded. On the contrary it is recoguized as the noble instrument of the spirit.
